ANOTHER SOLUTION TO THE QUESTION.

Reader Explains the Trouble and Makes Suggestions.

Kirkland, Wn., Sept. 24, 1907.
Editor Sun.

Dear Sir: You have asked for an expression of opinion as to why this beautiful suburb so close to Seattle does not advance and become appreciated at its true value.

That was exactly the question I asked last April when I first saw Kirkland.

The answers were as numerous as divergent.

The boat company was entirely responsible for holding back the town. They "had it in for Kirkland."

To me, that didn't look rational because the only thing that can make that boat company a success is increased population on this side, and a permanent one.

Then I suggested that if the boat company was to blame, the remedy was another boat owned by the people of Kirkland or a company sufficiently interested in the town to make it go.

Some said the townsite company was to blame, that they owned most of the land and did not want the town developed as it increased their taxes.

Can it be possible that men have bought land, platted it out into town lots and are holding it to hurt the town. That theory is pretty thin.

Then we hear another story, the boat company again. The boat company want the saloons opened and they are knocking the town to compel the "drys," who are in a majority, to yield to the "wets" who are sore over the lid being closed.

Poor boat company. It is a good thing to have it to unload 2—Kirkland Sun Shil 9-24 all the kicks on.

No one more strongly urged the purchase of another boat than I, and I attended a meeting of the Commercial Club at which I was told the matter was to be decided on, and there I learned the secret of the failure of Kirkland to take her place as the foremost and most beautiful suburb of Seattle. One word tells the whole tale—DISCORD.

"In unity there is strength." Divide a nation, a community or a household against themselves and success is an impossibility.

The saloon element in this town has been beaten in their efforts to have a wide open town, and as an unprejudiced and disinterested party it looks to me that the proper thing to do is to submit gracefully to the will of the majority and instead of growling and fighting, get into the ranks and fight shoulder to shoulder for the common good even if you don't like the officers in command.

As far as the boat company is concerned, whether it is Jacob Furth, Capt. Anderson or who it is, they have invested their good money to get returns. That is the first consideration and would be with any of us, and the more they accommodate the public the nearer will they succeed; but we can't expect even as good natured a man as Capt. Anderson to be other than human, and if any of us had a monopoly of that lake, we would do just as he does, and as every other man has since Commodore Vanderbilt inaugurated his "Public be damned" principle on the Hudson river.

As long as we hold a monopoly we should run it to suit ourselves. No use standing off and howling about how good we'd be if we were in the other fellow's shoes. Let us at least be honest with ourselves and admit we are no better than our fellows.

To make Kirkland go we must get the "Seattle Spirit." Drys and wets, Christians and sinners, drones and workers must pull unitedly for one common goal and nothing can stop us from winning.

We have the most beautiful spot on the sound, and if I was the manager of the town company I would put a boat on and give a service regardless of cost that would sell every lot, and once sold and built on, the boat question would settle itself.

At present the traffic does not warrant the service we get, but, as in every other place, transportation must precede development.

Let every one unite in boosting and we'll soon have the finest suburb of the Queen City.

Yours truly,
JAMES FULLERTON.

A Kirkland Teacher Honored.

Miss Getty of the Kirkland School has been engaged to give a series of illustrated lectures before the County Teachers' Institute, which will meet at Georgetown during the second week in October.

Miss Getty has spent much time in the last few years in studying the habits, mounting and painting the birds of the Northwest.

She has paintings (most of them life size) of nearly every bird in the United States.

Surely no one is better qualified than Miss Getty to instruct and interest the teachers and through them the children and others of our county in this important branch of science.

HOUGHTON NEWS.

Mrs. J. H. Carter and son Ben spent a few days in the city with friends.

Mr. Cecil Speers, of Chicago, arrived Sunday to become acquainted with the wild and wooley west and incidentally to make a visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirtley entertained at their home Saturday, Mr. Frany Hony of Bellingham.

Miss Carrie Speck, who has been visiting aunt, Mrs. McKivor, returned Monday to her home in Winnipeg.

While Crossing the Lake.

[Note.—It has occurred to the editor that the business man who crosses the lake from Kirkland each day, spending one hour upon the boat, are absolutely wasting the equivalent of 35 working days in a year. They spend this time in chewing the rag, when they might be accomplishing much for the benefit of their brother man. Hence we have evolved the brilliant idea of asking these commuters to contribute articles to this column, said articles to be written on the boat. We have often asked these gentlemen for contributions, but their excuse has always been, no time. We hope that they will respond eagerly to this invitation, and that this column will scintillate with brilliant emanations from their colossal think-tanks. This week's spasms were extracted by force from certain unsuspecting victims.—Editor.]

History of Kirkland.

Written by a Deckhand.
Kirkland was discovered by the Indians in 1492. At that time there was nobody here except A. E. Brooks and Hanson's old gray horse. The town was founded in 1875 by Peter Kirk, founded in 1883 by the steel works company, and found again by the Kirkland Commercial Club last Christmas. Its principal exports are real estate, milk, woollen blankets and shingles. Its imports are Seattle automobilists, peddlers and fleas. Its chief points of interest are the city jail, Hotel Jackson's new cesspool and the old ferry boat. Its empty buildings are at present full. It is noted for having as many miles of fresh air, measuring straight up, as any city in the world. Kirkland has a water works system with a capacity of 12 cups of water per day, except in dry weather. For more information on this subject apply to the city directory.

A Nautical Poem.

(Written by a Stoker.)
Hail to the queen of the silvery Lake,
The Urania, staunch and true.
The sunlight gleams on her rippling wake,
As she cuts through the waters blue.
The purser, he rattles the mon. in his purse
As he struts up the quarter deck.
The pilot eats pie, puts the glass to his eye
And looks for a possible wreck.
The stoker, he stokes, with the poker he pokes;
Keeps the pressure at two hundred pounds.
The brave engineer, now there and now here,
Keeps watch for unusual sounds.
She pulls up to the dock with scarcely a rock,
The deckhand he lassoes the pile;
The passengers jump, one another they bump,
In the true Seattle style.
Hurrah for the gallant Urania
With its whistle that wakes the earth quake.
She's the handsomest boat that was ever afloat
On the bosom of Washington lake.

Our Commercial Club and What It Is Doing for the East Side.

The club was organized on the first Monday in January and now has 165 members. One of the first things the club took up was better boat service. This was given as soon as the new boat was placed on the run. Then the scow service was taken up and a request to have a larger scow and one with a roof. This was granted. Then as the farmers' traffic became better and stood up with the scow Anderson the question of having the scow taken to Kirkland in the evening and having the early boat take the scow back to town, which is now being done. The only thing that could be done with the present scow to better the conditions would be to run a 12 or 1 o'clock scow, many farmers claiming they have to lay over several hours on that account. They have also taken up the building of a new ferry, when the commissioners had decided to sell out the ferry franchise and go out of the boat business. The club took an active part in showing the county commissioners that a new ferry was a necessity, which was granted by the county board. A live newspaper was then advocated, with the result that the people on the East Side have as clean and good a country paper as there is in Western Washington. Later the club, through their secretary, took up with Mayor Moore, of Seattle, the question of a market site for the farmers east of the lake, and he has promised that there will be a site given them just south of the Madison Street power house, the same to be ready early in the spring of 1908. Now, if the club never does anything more than get a new ferry and a market it will have made a great change for the better in the conditions both for traffic and the marketing of produce for every farmer east of Lake Washington in King County. There are many other things that will come up wherein every resident in that territory should stand together, and every one ought to be a member of the club, for it represents all of the north-east portion of King County, and their object is to encourage in the development of the east side of Lake Washington. Long may they flourish.

WOMEN WILL FIGHT FOR RIGHTS.

Kirkland Will Send Strong Delegation to Convention in Seattle.

The regular meeting of the Women's Suffrage Club met with Mrs. Julia Hawley, September 17. The business under consideration was the election of delegates to State Convention. The following delegates were elected: Mrs. Hawley and Miss Baine, Mrs. Elder, Mrs. Graves, Miss Clinton, Miss Getty, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. W. Curtis. Alternates, Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. G. Curtis.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Robinson, October 16, 1907.

Woman Suffragists of Washington will hold the eighteenth annual convention in Seattle next Friday and Saturday. They have announced their intention of starting a campaign in this state for equal rights as soon as the Oregon campaign, which is now under way, is concluded.

The convention will assemble in the Unitarian church Friday morning. The first session will be devoted to hearing annual reports of state officers and of the chairmen of committees. In the afternoon the local presidents will report and addresses will be made by prominent workers for equal rights. The evening will be devoted to addresses.

The reports of local presidents will be continued Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon leaders of the movement will make reports on the work in New Zealand, Finland, Norway, England, Australia and America. The evening session will be devoted to addresses. An executive meeting will be held at the Rainier-Grand Thursday evening preceding the convention.

"We plan to have the next campaign for suffrage in Washington," said a prominent local worker of the movement yesterday. "Idaho has woman suffrage, British Columbia has it, Oregon will have it, when the campaign that is now on is concluded, and with the states surrounding us all equal suffrage states, it is up to Washington to have it."

"In territorial days this was an equal suffrage state. All good laws trace back to suffrage. The women would not vote for machine rule and politicians, and the machine trumped up a case in

The Redmond Lumber Co.'s sawmill shut down last Wednesday noon for an indefinite period. Shortage of cars seems to be the trouble.

A basket social was held in the Avondale schoolhouse last Saturday evening for the benefit of the Sunday school library.

A crew of men are driving new piling and repairing the railroad bridge across the Squak slough.

John Hutcheson left for Pullman, Wash., Monday to resume his studies in the college at that place. He is taking a course in electrical engineering.

Seth Cameron, who has been working in the vicinity of Redmond for the last two years, was killed in the camp of England & Cyphers last Friday evening about 5:30 o'clock. It appears that he felled a small cedar tree, and in falling, the tree struck against an old snag, breaking the snag about the center, which caused the top to fall back towards the stump of the cedar, killing Cameron instantly. It seems that the brush and logs were quite thick where he was working, so that he could not get out of the way. The funeral services were held Sunday at 10 o'clock a. m., conducted by Rev. John P. Herring.

The price of logs has dropped in the neighborhood of from $2.00 to $2.50. This will cause the shutting down of quite a few camps in the vicinity of Redmond.

Wm. Underhill made a trip to Seattle last Friday, returning Sunday.

Warren Wippler will soon start logging at Derby.

The dance at Redmond Hall last Saturday evening was well attended. Supper was served at Tardy's Hotel.

The Avondale Shingle Co. has lately acquired several tracts of timber land and we have been informed that they will soon erect a large mill with double the capacity of the present one.

Bidy Rice was conspicuous by his absence in Redmond last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gregor, of Kapowsin, passed through Redmond last Monday on their way to North Bend. George's father is reported to be very ill.

Geo. Vincent, who has been working at Meadowdale, arrived in Redmond Monday evening for several weeks' visit at home.

A company of 80 soldiers, with five wagons and 36 head of horses will camp on the Judge White ranch west of the slough for a short time. They are from Fort Lawton.

Miss Bowers, of Rochester, Minn., is visiting with her cousin, H. A. Templeton, this week. She will return home next Saturday.

Mrs. W. A. Faulds is on the sick list this week.

John Weiss left for Pullman, Wash., last Monday to attend the college at that place.

Mrs. A. O. Wiley visited in Ballard last week. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley are attending the Yakima fair this week.

Mr. Wiley bought a fine driving horse last week. He now has as fine a lot of horses as can be found in any stable in the county.

FOR SALE—A fine Jersey bull. Weight 1200. Apply to A. O. Wiley, Redmond.

Our friend "Billy" Putnam recently acquired one dog, otherwise known as "Happy." The dog and Billy forthwith became inseparable friends, and henceforth it was "Love me, love my dog." Now, Billy went to town the other day, and he (the dog) became very, very lonesome. He scouted around the town in dire distress. Result, no Billy. Finally scenting an old trail, doglike, with his nose close to the ground, away he trots up this well-beaten path to the schoolhouse steps, where he waits all afternoon. Result, no Billy. After school was dismissed "Happy" with a sad look on his canine countenance slowly wends his way back to Redmond. Nothing like giving your dog a school education these days, eh, Billy?

A Card of Thanks.

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

RELIGION IN THE BUSINESS WORLD.

By Rev. Amos Judson Bailey.

The Industrial triumvirate is composed of the employers, the employes, and the public, with the government as a fourth party, whose duty it is to see that all rights are respected and all responsibilities are faithfully discharged. The interests of these three parties are co-ordinate. There is no defense of one party against other parties. A recognition of the equal rights of the three parties does not take from the employers the rights of ownership as commonly interpreted. But it does emphasize the element of stewardship in the interpretation of the rights and responsibilities of ownership.

If there are those who do not want to accept the gospel plan of conduct for the industrial triumvirate because they do not want to "love" the other parties of the triumvirate, let them say so, and then not complain of industrial strife. There is no alternative; it must be industrial righteousness or industrial strife. The call of the gospel is to those who love righteousness and hate strife. And for the saving of industry as for the saving of a man the call of the gospel is "whosoever will." The success of righteousness does not depend on the number of those who indorse it, but on the loyalty of those who appeal to it. The code of Jesus applied to industries will not help men to get rich and at the same time to treat other men as enemies. But men whose first ambition is to make friends of all other men, as they have opportunity and as they are able, will find with the wealth of such friendship there will be added all the wealth that earth can give and heaven approve. Because the gospel offers industrial peace, men can secure it. It is worth the effort.

CULTIVATE SELF-ESTEEM.

By Juliet V. Strauss.

JULIET V. STRAUSS.

Nobody's life is a failure unless he himself considers it so. If it suits him, that is all that is necessary. A man may be a bore, he may be utterly useless and inefficient, or he may be unendurably officious and always bobbing up at the wrong time, but so long as he doesn't know it he is fortunate above everybody else.

There is a certain class of people whom I often think are more to be envied than any others, and that is they who are hopelessly had form and do not know it. They are handsome, they are elaborate, they are stylish. What more could be desired? Their serenity in coldly tramping down all the unwritten laws of good taste is a terror to beholders, and has a humorous side calculated to make a cow laugh. There is only one sort of person who is funnier, and that is one who is just as hopelessly good form. Some form is so good that it is bad, and people who are afflicted with this inebrious sort are truly ponderous. Their efforts are as unlike the consummate social grace of those to the manner born as is the playing of the person we used to call a "bumble puppy" at whist to that of the real whist player. The "bumble puppy," however, is all right, because he thinks he is.

It is only when we become a little bit doubtful of our own success that we begin to be pitiable, and people kick us from pillar to post. People like impudence; they like duplicity; they like vanity; they like display. If you are meek and modest, mild and meritorious, just get ready to turn the other cheek, for you will have reason to do so.

If the thought that perhaps, after all, you are not the smartest thing in town begins to creep into your deluded cranium, expel it, as you would any other poisonous sentiment. Remember you are the center of the universe, and let that thought console you; give your hat a little tilt over your nose and step out jauntily, for if you slink, somebody will throw a rock at you or tie a tin can to your coat tail.

DIVORCE AND ALLMONY.

By Margaret S. Harris.

As a rule it is true that when a woman gets a divorce from her husband she wants him still to support her. The judges do wrong in encouraging such actions. In some special cases allmony is all right, but in most it is not, especially when there are no children. A woman should have too much pride and self-respect to want a man whom she will not live with to support her. It is unfair to break up a man's home and then ask him to support a person who declines to live with him.

As a rule, women are selfish. One reason for it is that a woman who does the same work as a man gets only half the pay for it and so the women want the man to even it up. The tendency of late years is for humanity to become more and more selfish. Another thing to be deplored is the great number of suits for breach of promise. It looks as though she had a market price set on her affections when she asks for money because her love is slighted. Whenever a man is sued for breach of promise he should feel thankful that he did not marry the woman. If he has to pay her money he can feel that "the loser is the winner." Such things savor too much of blackmail or a hold-up scheme.

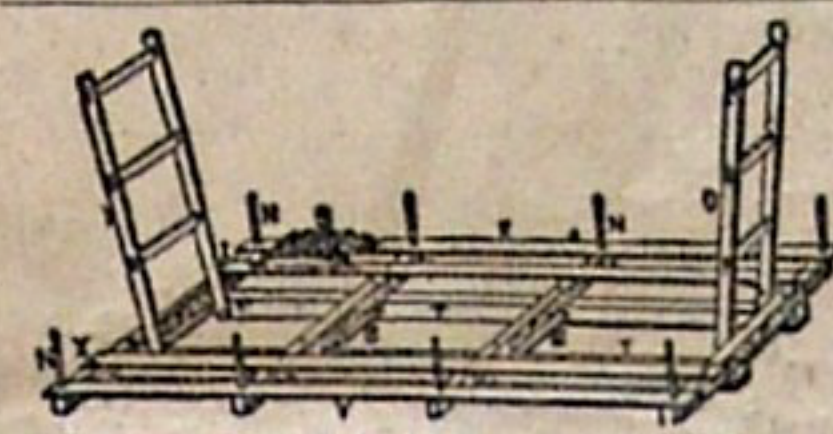

There would be so much selfishness among either men or women if we were not living in a mad scramble for wealth. "Do others or they will do you" is too much the business motto of to-day. We all belong to the human family and we should treat our fellows more as brothers and sisters. If we did so life would be more worth the living than it is at present.

Growing Cucumbers for Pickling.

Factories for pickling cucumbers are being established wherever the farmers can be induced to become interested. Small pickles, not over 2 1/2 inches long, usually bring about 50 cents per bushel. The average yield is estimated at 100 bushels per acre, though several hundred bushels may be grown upon an acre. The mildew destroys the vines in some sections, but this is kept down by spraying. The striped cucumber beetle, which can not be destroyed by paris green or ordinary insecticides, is a formidable enemy where it makes its appearance. The long green varieties of cucumbers are used. Plenty of manure should be applied. A fertilizer consisting of one part nitrogen, one part phosphoric acid and two parts of potash is about the proper formula for cucumbers. Cucumbers are salted with two quarts of salt per bushel of cucumbers, packed closely in tierces or barrels, and enough brine added to cover them. The brine should be added daily, as evaporation lowers the water in the vessel and exposes the cucumbers, which may damage them. Growers can co-operate, form a joint stock company, and sell the pickles on the market, thus securing the largest profit possible from growing them.

Handy Combination Hayrack.

The combination hayrack shown in the first illustration is a convenient one. It is made of bed pieces of pine or other straight grained light wood fourteen or sixteen feet in length, eight inches wide and three inches thick; if of oak or other hard wood, two and one-half inches thick will give sufficient strength. Four crosspieces, B, of hard wood one and one-quarter inches thick and six inches wide, are mortised and firmly secured to the bed pieces. This constitutes the frame or foundation and is shown in the second cut. It is frequently used separately to haul rails, boards, stones, manure, etc., and is a convenient, strong and handy arrangement for the purpose. In the first cut is shown the rigging complete, of which its four crosspieces or arms, P, are seven and one-half feet in length, five inches wide and two and one-half inches thick.

If designed for a "sectional rigging" and to prevent side movement a half inch groove is cut into the lower sides of the cross arms, P, so that they fit closely upon the bed pieces. To prevent a forward or backward movement eight strong iron hooks are attached by staples to the sides of the cross arms and when placed upon the bed pieces are readily hooked into the staples, A. Thus arranged one man can easily place the rigging upon or take it from the wagon; or, if desired, bolts may be used to fasten all together by passing them through the cross arms and bed pieces. There is not 25 cents difference in the expense.

Standards, D, can be either stationary or hinged so as to be quickly lowered, raised or removed by a small bolt, as shown at Y. The standards should be six and one-half feet high and quite strong to withstand the pressure of the load as well as to serve as a ladder. The boards, X, should be of the same length as the bed pieces and one inch thick and six inches wide of straight grained light wood. Wooden pins or stakes, N, are inserted as shown and should be only slightly sharpened. Should the hind wheels project above the boards, X, bridge over them, as shown at S. Wash with petroleum and keep under shelter when not in use.—Country Gentleman.

Breed and Feed.

Those who take the position that the "breed is in the feed" may learn something from the experiment made at the Illinois experiment station, where two cows were given the same treatment, both receiving the same quantity of food and both given an opportunity of showing what they could do, yet there was a great variation in the results, one cow largely excelling the other. Without proper food and a plentiful supply, no animal can produce to her fullest capacity, but it is a fact that the breed is an important matter, and some cows will yield twice as much as others, no matter how well fed both may be.

Weevil Optimism.

There are people who believe that the advent of the boll weevil will ultimately prove a good thing for the country and who regard the little insect as a blessing in disguise. We hope they are right. It is argued that the boll weevil will bring about a readjustment of labor conditions; will break up the cotton system and substitute diversified farming, truck and fruit growing.—Homer (La.) Guardian-Journal.

Green Food for Stock.

When the pastures begin to give out there will be a falling off of milk from the cows. This is due to the fact that the farmer does not supply the loss of green food from the pasture. A plot of corn fodder, used as green food, being given the cows at night, will materially assist in preventing the loss of milk. A change of food from green to dry substances will nearly always cause the falling off in milk, for which reason the change from green to dry food should be gradual and never suddenly.

Safe Stepladder.

Build your stepladder like this, and it will never slip.

The Peanut Trade.

Peanuts have become an important article of American foreign commerce in the last six years, especially on the import side, in spite of the fact that we produce about 12,000,000 bushels a year. Peanut imports have grown in value from $6,000 in 1900 to $500,000 this year, while our exports thereof will approximate $300,000. When this fiscal year closes we shall have to list peanuts for nearly $1,000,000 of our total foreign commerce for the year, according to the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

The peanut acreage in this country increased 150 per cent and production 233 per cent between 1890 and 1900. There are under cultivation now 517,000 acres, producing 11,905,000 bushels. The crop is concentrated in a few Southern States, Virginia supplying one-third of it, North Carolina another third.—New York Sun.

Poultry as a Business.

Is there progress in poultry keeping? Read the market reports. Look at the amount of poultry advertising done today as compared with five years ago. How did the winter prices of eggs in the last five years of the nineteenth century compare with those of the first five years of this? Thousands of people are to-day making a comfortable living and many have become independent by raising poultry and eggs for the market. It has been proven by experiments that it costs no more to produce a pound of poultry than it does to produce a pound of pork or beef, yet poultry is always worth more per pound than any other meat and sells just as readily.

Teaching Botany in Public Schools.

In country schools botany should be taught by devoting an hour or two each week, in the growing seasons, to excursions to the fields and woods, plants being selected, described and classified. By this mode of teaching, an interest in botany will be created on the part of the children. A flower garden in connection with the school should also be an advantage.

New Idea in Fertilizers.

The Southern Illinois Penitentiary is now preparing lime stone dust for distribution among farmers for fertilizing purposes. The dust is put up in sacks at the prison and is sold to farmers at 50 cents a sack. It is said to be one of the finest fertilizers known.—Chester Herald.

Good draft horses now bring from $200 to $300. It is little wonder, therefore, that well-advised farmers pay fancy prices for imported brood mares, when 3-year-olds bring such prices.—Bethany Republican.

UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

Cupid's Task is Not a Pleasant One in Spain and Italy.

That all the world loves a lover has been evidenced by the world-wide interest that has been manifested in the courtships and marriages which have recently taken place in leading official circles of this country and in royal circles abroad. Every movement of the happy persons involved in these incidents has afforded entertainment for the world at large.

Undoubtedly the lot of the American lover is the happiest of all. We hear a great deal of the romance of Spanish love-making, of serenades and whispered conversations, of fan talk and the flashing of dark eyes from the shuttered balcony above.

But the Spanish or Italian lover would tell you that this is all moonshine and that there is mighty little romance in leaning against a wall in a draughty, narrow street, with the mistral, or the levanter—which at home we know provisionally enough as the east wind—cutting one's liver into sole leather and driving through the thickest cloak that the local tailor can turn out.

And this is what the Spanish or Italian lover has to put up with. It is not the custom to invite him in to tea, and pretty well until the banias are up he is expected to do all his love-making from the curbstone. So it happens that a Spanish street at night is lined on either hand by mysterious figures, who appear to be gilded against the white walls like flies on a "catch-em-alive!"

At first, the nervous tourist will button up his coat, and wish he had brought a revolver with him. The sight of these dim figures, cloaked to the eyes, their swarthy faces half covered with soft, slouching felt sombreros, recalls to him every villain in every drama he has ever seen, and as the streets echo with their soft whisperings, he imagines that they are conspiring to murder him.

But no such thing! Were he an inhabitant of the town he would soon recognize the first villain as Pepe Herrero, the ship brokers' clerk, who is desperately in love with Juanita Aramburu, and perhaps, just a little in love with the good house property against which he is leaning, which will all come to Juanita when her mother is gathered to her ancestors in the white-walled catacombs outside the city.

In the second villain we have young Enrique De Molina, son of the proprietor of the Hotel De Paris, who is the Papa. Mamma. Johnny. Sister. Grandma. AND HOW THE REST OF THE FAMILY MADE USE OF IT.

"querido" or sweetheart of pretty Elena De Las Sierras, only daughter of the elderly manager of the local branch of the Banco De Espana; and so on.

Let us translate all this love making into English, and here we have, robbed of a romance which is only supposititious, poor Pepe Herrero, or Joe Smith—which is the true English of his name, as frequent in Spain as it is in any other country—making the best love he can to Joan Aramburu, who lives in a second story flat at least 30 feet above his head.

In all sorts of weather Pepe, or Joe, is bound to turn up at 8 o'clock every evening to transmit his love making in hoarse whispers to the balcony whereon his Juanita stands. If he misses an evening, winter or summer, Juanita will want to know the reason why, in just the same sort of plain English as she would if she were Mary Jones.

And so Joe Smith has courted her for the last three years without even the privilege of kissing that tiny hand which waves so whitely in the moonlight above.

The Bishop Apologized.

Dr. Temple was wont to rule the diocese of Exeter with an iron hand, and a tale is told of a deanery meeting at which he presided, when the subject for discussion was "The Hindrances to the Spiritual Life of the Diocese." After the discussion had proceeded for some time a vicar electrified his audience by declaring that the greatest hindrance to the full spiritual life was none other than the bishop himself. "I repeat it," said the speaker calmly, "our right reverend father in God is very far from being a father to any of us. Your manner toward us," he continued, turning to the bishop, "is harsh in the extreme, while your method of rule is this: You treat us all, old and young, as if we were a set of school boys." This bold statement drew from the bishop an apology, and he explained ed that beneath his brusqueness of manner was a very genuine sympathy with the work of all the clergy. This impeachment created the more sensation in the meeting because it came from a son of Dr. Temple's predecessor, the famous Henry of Exeter.—Westminster Gazette.

Too Rapid Growth.

The minister's 6-year-old son is of a very critical, literal turn of mind, and his father's sermons sometimes puzzle him sorely. He regards his father as the embodiment of truth and wisdom, but he has difficulty in harmonizing the dominie's pulpit utterances with the world as it really is. His parents encourage him to express his opinions, and clear up his doubts as much as possible. So one Sunday at dinner, after a long period of thought, they were not surprised when he said, gravely, "Papa, you said one thing in your sermon to-day that I don't think is so at

"Well, what's that, my boy?" asked the clergyman.

"Well, papa, you said 'the boy of to-day is the man of to-morrow.' That's too soon."

The Names of Tea.

We talk glibly about Pekoe, Bohea, etc., but few people have any idea of what these names signify.

"Pekoe" is the dialect of Canton. "White hair," for the tea which has this name is made from the youngest leaves, so young that the white down is still on them.

"Soochong," in the same dialect, is a quite unpoetic name; it merely signifies "small kind."

"Flourishing spring" is the meaning of "Hyson."

"Congoo" signifies "labor;" much trouble and toil are expended in its preparation at Amoy, and these are commemorated in its name.

"P" is called after a range of

Science AND INVENTION

Sodium is an excellent conductor of electricity, and in view of the increasing price of copper and the growing demand for that metal not only for electric installations, but for many other purposes, the idea has been broached that sodium should be tried as a material for electric cables. Experiments looking to this end have lately been made by A. G. Bett. He filled an iron tube 130 feet in length with melted sodium. The core thus formed had a cross-section of an inch and a half. A current of 500 amperes was readily transmitted through it. Mr. Bett thinks that sodium conductors constructed upon this plan may be made cheaper than conductors of copper.

A satisfactory rubberless tire has been evolved. The scheme consists of filling a thin inner tire with a hot solution of glue, glycerine and chronic salts as the tire reposes in place on the rim of the wheel. This is allowed to harden for a few days when the tire is covered with canvas or some similar material which will withstand the wear and tear of service. It is claimed for this rubber substitute that it is very durable and will carry heavy loads without deterioration or loss of resiliency. It is much cheaper than rubber and the only criticism raised against it is that it is heavy. Each wheel equipped in this manner adds 40 to 50 pounds to the weight of the vehicle. The advantages will outweigh this objection, it is said.

A German official of standing in the superior grades—Herr Martin, a government councillor—has attracted a good deal of at least ephemeral notice by a new theory of aerostatics in war, which he has just published. For novelty the views of Herr Martin could hardly be surpassed. The title of his work is "The Age of Aerial Navigation," which is, of course, the twentieth century. Herr Martin contends that during the century now opening aerostatics and automobilism will assume immense importance in strategy, and will go far to neutralize in favor of France the great numerical preponderance given to Germany by her larger population. Into the day dreams of Herr Martin, which include partition of Belgium and the Germanizing of Morocco, it is not needful to enter. But he foresees that France and Germany will agree rather than fight.

In 1906 the known number of asteroids, or minor planets, had reached 603, and still the discovery of these miniature worlds continues, especially with the aid afforded by celestial photography. Among a vast multitude of stars crowding a photographic plate one, perhaps, will be seen to have drawn a short thin line upon the plate during its hours of continuous exposure. The astronomer knows at once that it is either an asteroid or a comet. Subsequent observations soon decide the point. Only the more interesting ones are afterward observed with attention; but once discovered they cannot be ignored, and the rapid growth of the flock becomes an embarrassment. Eros, which at times approaches the earth nearer than any other regular member of the solar system except the moon, and Asteroid No. 588, which at aphelion is more distant than Jupiter, remain, as far as their orbits are concerned, the most interesting members of the entire group, and are kept under constant observation whenever circumstances permit.

Makes Meat Tender.
It would be safe to say that if there were no meat trust meat tenderers would be almost unknown. On the contrary, there is a constant demand for some device by which meat can be rendered more tender before cooking. Poor cooking is seldom the cause of tough meat. In the majority of meat tenderers the method is to pound the MEAT TENDERER. steak, etc., with an instrument having numerous sharp points. The pounding must be done with care, all parts of the meat being equally gone over. Where the pounding is applied too much to one spot, the meat is unintentionally severed. Not so with the meat tenderer shown here, which consists of a pair of hinged jaws having teeth arranged in rows on the inner surfaces. On the front of the jaws are a lever and corresponding catch, by which the jaws are forcibly compressed. By moving the steak after each compression the teeth are forced to cover the entire surface evenly. Boarding and chop houses please take notice.

In the morning cook slowly until it looks clear, then add balance of sugar and cook until thick. About fifteen minutes before taking from the stove add juice and rind of lemon. This quantity will make two quarts of marmalade. It can be sealed while hot, or put in jelly glasses and covered with paraffin.

RHEUMATISM CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

It is perfectly natural to rub the spot that hurts, and when the muscles, nerves, joints and bones are throbbing and twitching with the pains of Rheumatism the sufferer is apt to turn to the liniment bottle, or some other external application, in an effort to get relief from the disease, by producing counter-irritation on the flesh. Such treatment will quiet the pain temporarily, but can have no direct curative effect on the real disease because it does not reach the blood, where the cause is located. Rheumatism is more than skin deep—it is rooted and grounded in the blood and can only be reached by constitutional treatment—IT CANNOT BE RUBBED AWAY. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural avenues of bodily waste, the Bowels and Kidneys, have failed to carry off. This refuse matter, coming in contact with the different acids of the body, forms uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. The aches and pains are only symptoms, and though they may be scattered or relieved for a time by surface treatment, they will reappear at the first exposure to cold or dampness, or after an attack of indigestion or other irregularity. Rheumatism can never be permanently cured while the circulation remains saturated with irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The disease will shift from muscle to muscle or joint to joint, settling on the nerves, causing inflammation and swelling and such terrible pains that the nervous system is often shattered, the health undermined, and perhaps the patient becomes deformed and crippled for life. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses the blood and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling all foreign matter from the system. It warms and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acid and corrosive matter in the muscles, nerves, joints and bones, the body is fed and nourished by rich, health-sustaining blood which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. is composed of both purifying and tonic properties—just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. It contains no potash, alkali or other mineral ingredient, but is made entirely of purifying, healing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks. If you are suffering from Rheumatism do not waste valuable time trying to rub a blood disease away, but begin the use of S. S. S. and write us about your case and our physicians will give you any information or advice desired free of charge and will send our special treatise on Rheumatism.

STANDARD MUST GIVE BOND OF SIX MILLIONS

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana, in order to obtain a stay of execution against its property to satisfy the fine of $29,240,000 recently imposed by Judge Landis, must furnish bonds to the amount of $6,000,000. This was determined by Judge Grosscup in the United States circuit court, much to the chagrin of the attorneys on both sides. The counsel for the Standard had contended strenuously for a bond of not more than $1,000,000, while the attorneys for the government had demanded that the bonds be as high as the fine imposed by Judge Landis.

Judge Grosscup ordered that two bonds must be filed and approved by the court before the supersedeas shall issue, one for $4,000,000, covering the property of the company at Whiting, Ind., the other for $2,000,000 to cover the property of the company elsewhere.

BY EDICT OF EMPRESS

FOUNDATION TO BE LAID FOR CHINESE PARLIAMENT.

Washington Government Ready as in Case of Japan; to Lend All Assistance Possible in Its Establishment --- Intermediate Steps Will Require Some Time.

Peking, Sept. 21.—An imperial edict was issued yesterday authorizing Prince Pu Lun, who was Chinese envoy at the St. Louis exposition, and Sun Chi Anai, in cooperation with the grand council to frame resolutions for the establishment of a council of deliberation to aid the government, "so that the foundation may be laid for a parliament."

The dowager empress says that in the establishment of a representative government for China the opinions of all must be considered, and though the upper and lower houses are foundations of all administration, the throne in China is unable to establish them in China at present.

Both Chang Chi Tung and Yuan Shi Kai, since coming to Peking on their appointment as grand councillors, have urged the establishment of a constitutional form of government, recalling the fact that this reform has been promised and that China and all the rest of the world expected to see it carried out. Memorials to the throne from the highest officials throughout China continue to reach Peking in large numbers, urging the throne to grant China a constitutional government.

WASHINGTON READY TO LEND ASSISTANCE

Washington, Sept. 21.—The important edict referred to in a Peking cablegram relative to the establishment of a council of deliberation, has been in course of preparation for more than six months. As in the case of Japan, America is ready to lend every assistance to China in adopting modern methods of government and in attaining to the rank of a fully civilized state.

There is reason to believe that the decision of the throne to publish the edict at this time was an immediate result of the return to China of Sir Cheng Tung Liang Cheng, who spent the best part of his four years stay in Washington in devising plans for the inauguration of reforms in the administrative system in China.

While the purpose of the edict is to secure a constitutional or parliamentary form of government, the Chinese people are not ready, through inexperience, for a full fledged parliament. Intermediate steps are provided for in the decree. The most important is the creation under section four of the decree of a "Chischen Yua," or a ministry for the discussion of state affairs.

The purpose of this body is to evolve reform measures through a conference between the great viceroys or their delegates, representatives, and the head men to be chosen by the cities and towns directly. When such preliminary laws are adopted as will insure local self government through leaders chosen by the people themselves, it will be time to consider the next step named, the selection of delegates to a convention in the nature of a parliament. So, in fact, China is following closely the footsteps of the Russian government in its efforts to establish a constitutional parliament.

Points of Edict

Other points of the edict, forecasted by reports received at the state department, are in brief as follows:

The Franco-Japanese agreement is to be studied in its effects upon China, and means devised to safeguard the national integrity.

The abolition of the office of investigation of political affairs, now of only nominal service.

The extension to the other provinces of the model local government system erected in Tien Tsin.

Adoption of compulsory education.

Establishment of government in good faith with the people.

Reorganization of the Locheun, or war board.

Preparation for the gold standard.

Punishment of Chinese officials who discriminate between Manchus and Chinese.

United States Gains By Survey

Dawson, Sept. 19.—International boundary surveyors who have been delimiting the Alaskan-Canadian line since June 13, have finished work for the summer and returned to Dawson. The advance party came down the White river on a raft; others are coming out overland with horses. The arrivals corroborate the report that the new line gives the Americans from 100 to 1,000 feet greater slice than the original survey by Ogilvie.

C. P. R. TO MINE COAL

Plans Output of 3,000 Tons Daily When Old Agreement Ends.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 21.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is completing plans for solving the coal and coke problem for the Pacific coast. The output from British Columbia is just now particularly affected by the export of thousands of tons of coal daily by the Crows Nest Pass Coal Company to the United States. The Canadian Pacific Railway owns 4,000 acres of coal lands at Hosmer, in East Kootenay. According to an agreement made half dozen years ago, the railway company is to keep out of competition in the production of coal till 1909. But the C. P. R. is getting ready to start business at the first moment it can under the agreement, and contracts for equipment have already been awarded and $1,500,000 will be expended in starting the work.

Practically all the buildings have been erected. The works will be started with a daily capacity of 3,000 tons. Three hundred coke ovens will be installed.

Alongside the coal lands of the C. P. R. and the Crows Nest Company, the Dominion government has reserves aggregating 50,000 acres, which are to be developed later. The original plan was that this coal would be mined and sold by the government to house holders for $2 per ton. So far the government has not developed its property to any extent.

MANY FLEE RUSSIA FOR SIBERIAN HOMES

St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—The restoration of order and quiet throughout the empire has given the ministers an opportunity for much needed rest. The majority have departed in various directions, and it is announced that no formal meeting of the council of ministers will take place until the middle of October.

Prince Vassilchikoff, the minister of agriculture, has gone on a month's trip to Siberia for the purpose of investigating the difficulties which have arisen among the immigrants through the governmental encouragement of emigration, which has attained an unprecedented volume.

From January 1 to July 31, Tchelyabinsk, on the Trans-Siberian railroad, registered 500,00 families, numbering 345,000 persons, and also 122,000 individual pioneers and homeseekers.

The rush of settlers is so great that all the available homestead lots are exhausted and the local authorities are unable to distribute the new arrivals. As a result of this state of affairs about a thousand families are now camping along the railroad, awaiting their turn to be assigned to homesteads. Many of the families are in want, having spent all their scanty funds.

Prince Vassilchikoff intends to open a settlement in new regions hitherto held in reserve by the forestry department.

EARLY RETURNS ARE MORE THAN CONFIRMED

Oklahoma City, Sept. 19.—The returns from Tuesday's election that arrived yesterday and last night continue to be of the same tenor, that the constitution has been adopted 3 to 1; that prohibition has carried by at least 30,000, and that the whole Democratic ticket, headed by Charles N. Haskell, of Muskogee, has been elected by a majority of more than 20,000. In the congressional election the Democrats have chosen four of the five representatives, according to latest returns. The legislature is Democratic by a large majority and will elect as United States senators Robert L. Owens, a Cherokee Indian and J. P. Gore, the famous blind orator. They were nominated by primaries in June. Mr. Haskell, Democratic candidate for governor, declares his majority will reach 40,000. He says that if the people have voted for prohibition, he will see that the law is enforced.

NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS TO FIGHT PAPER TRUST

New York, Sept. 21.—Members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria, discussed the high price of white paper and adopted resolutions for a reduction.

Efforts are to be directed against the combine among manufacturers. Another phase of the battle will be for a reduction of tariff rates on white paper imported into the country from Canada.

The publishers plan to carry their contest to the president and the department of justice, alleging there exists among the manufacturers a combination in restraint of trade.

MAY CALL OTHERS

ATTORNEY KELLOGG IS AFTER MORE STANDARD SECRETS.

Flagler, Payne and Archbold Believed to Be Objects of Next Batch of Subpoenas—John D. May Also Be Called Upon to Give Early History.

New York, Sept. 21.—John D. Rockefeller, genius extraordinary of the gigantic Standard Oil trust, may be forced to take the witness stand and under oath divulge certain secrets of the combination's history which he, better than any other, is able to render accurately. Other leading figures in the trust, who, it was expected, would escape the ordeal, also will be called to face Deputy Attorney General Frank B. Kellogg's formidable inquisitorial battery.

Those in charge of the federal suit to dissolve Standard Oil as a corporation violator of the Sherman anti-trust law, decided today that the issuing of more subpoenas is necessary. Although Mr. Kellogg would not tell who would be compelled to testify, the fact remains that the only men in possession of many much sought secrets who have not been subpoenaed are John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, W. H. Flagler, Oliver H. Payne, John D. Archbold and H. H. Rogers. It is believed that with the possible exception of William Rockefeller and H. H. Rogers, all these men can be forced to appear in court. William Rockefeller suddenly disappeared from the city the other day on a train which left the Grand Central station, and Mr. Rogers is declared to be in no condition to undergo examination.

GET FIGURES ON OIL TRUST

Kellogg's Experts Dig in Books—W. G. Rockefeller Next Witness.

New York, Sept. 23.—The adjournment over Sunday of the hearing here in the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company has given the government's expert accountants another day in which to obtain figures from the books containing records of the Standard Oil Company in the period from 1882 to 1892. These figures will probably lead to an interesting line of questioning during the week by the government counsel. It is likely that when the hearing is resumed this afternoon Wesley L. Tilford, treasurer of the Standard, will again take the stand. John G. Milburn, of counsel for the corporation, wishes to cross-examine him upon several points which have been touched upon by Mr. Kellogg.

William G. Rockefeller, it is understood, will then be called to the stand and asked by Mr. Kellogg to produce several books relating to the assistant treasurer's office.

W. E. Bemis, one of the leading men in the export department here of the Standard Oil Company, is wanted by the government for a witness, but Mr. Kellogg learned from Mr. Tilford that Mr. Bemis is in the far East and will not return for ten months or more.

PENNSYLVANIA GRAFTERS APPEAR AND GIVE BAIL

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 19.—The long expected arrests of those held to be responsible for the frauds committed in the furnishing and decorating of Pennsylvania's $20,000,000 capitol were made yesterday, the attorney general causing warrants to be issued for fourteen of the eighteen persons and firms named by the capitol investigation commission as being involved in the scandal.

Nearly all the defendants appeared during the day, waived hearing and entered bail for their appearance in the Dauphin county court. The principal defendants were held in $60,000 bail, which was furnished in every instance by surety companies.

All the defendants are charged with conspiracy to cheat and defraud the state by making false invoices, which were approved by Huston and Schumaker. Charges of obtaining money by false pretenses were also entered against Sanderson, Cassel, Payne and Wetter, it being alleged that they furnished fictitious bills for a greater amount than they were entitled to receive under contract.

King Leopold Fears Arbitration

The Hague, Sept. 21.—The decision of the Belgian government to oppose obligatory arbitration is attributed to the command of King Leopold, who is fearful that his claims in the Congo might be affected in the event of the adoption of the proposal. The king's action in this connection is regarded here as being in the nature of a scandal.

NOTICE.

The voters of the town of Kirkland are hereby notified that the registration books are open for the registration of voters at the office of the town clerk.

E. T. CHURCHILL, Town Clerk.

B. Y. P. U. Sunday evening, Sept. 29. Leader, Mr. Charlie Clarke. Topic: "The Meaning and Purpose of the Lord's Supper." All cordially invited.

The Teachers' County Institute, which Kirkland had hoped to land, will go to Georgetown. It will be held week after next.

C. G. Garretson has been appointed deputy superintendent of King county schools, and will visit the schools of this side of the county from North Bend to Bothell.

Messrs. Brooks and Knight and their better two-thirds, spent last week in the Tolt country, hunting, fishing, eating and killing mosquitoes. While fording the river in a wagon Mr. Knight got seasick and fell off into the water, getting quite moist. That's what they are driving at when they say that the rest of the party gained but Mr. Knight "fell off."

A huge cesspool is being dug in the rear of Hotel Jackson. It is 30 feet square and 50 feet deep.

Willard Brooks, H. Reeves and Mr. Faddin left yesterday for a camping trip on the Snoqualmie. Mrs. McClellan, of Alki Point, visited Mrs. Hill last Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Miller, of South Kirkland, returned last Thursday from a week's visit in Portland. During his absence his wife visited friends in Seattle.

C. L. Parrish is moving into his beautiful new residence in South Kirkland. This is one of the most modern and up-to-date houses on the east side.

Considerable remonstrance is being made in regard to the new street crossings that have been put in recently. They are so much higher than the streets that it is difficult for a loaded wagon to get over them.

The C. F. was up on the ways for repairs last week. She belongs to the Anderson Steamboat Co.

H. B. Ellis left yesterday for his claim in Eastern Washington. His brother Frank will help in the store during his absence.

H. P. Hanson and family returned Sunday from a hunting trip in the Hoods Canal country. Oh, dear! No deer!

It is reported that Geo. Bartch has purchased the Koch hotel and will put in a large livery stable. Mrs. Campbell, who has been running the dining room, quit yesterday.

One of B. K. Wilson's daughters has been quite ill, recently.

Tom Lines has quit logging and contemplates going east of the mountains purchasing some land and farming it.

"Van," who has been deckhand on the Urania for some time, is now on the Gazelle.

Engineer Brooks and Capt. Tompkins, of the Urania, have returned from their vacation east of the mountains. By the condition of their fingers, we would judge that they had been picking hops or breaking cayuses.

William T. Hillestad took a load of produce to the Pike Place market last Saturday. While he was looking for a stand a policeman came along and arrested him, for what reason Mr. H. was unable to determine. The hurry-up wagon was called and he was hustled into it, but before the station was reached he managed to impress the cop in charge with his story of innocence, and he was finally allowed to climb out of the wagon and go back to his own, which was a little slower, but much more comfortable. He is still pondering over the question of why he was arrested and cussing the Seattle police force.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Genner at Juanita on September 22, a baby girl.

The library lunch last Thursday was a decided success, quite a sum of money being raised to carry on the good work. The ladies in charge wish to thank all those who by their patronage helped to make it a success.

Fishing in the Tolt country is said to be very fine. A party hooked 135 trout last Sunday. The salmon are beginning to make their appearance in the river.

On Wednesday, October 2, the Ladies' Aid of the Congregational Church is invited to Mrs. Babcock's home at Cedarmere. We feel sure that those who attend will spend a very pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. Brallier was pleasantly surprised on Sunday last by the arrival of her friend, Mrs. Alborell, of Oakland, Cal., who will visit her for some time.

The two Dieks, the two Fraus, a hay rack and eight pretty girls, accompanied by a stately chaperone, left Happy Hollow, Kirkland, on Tuesday night for Avondale to have a good time, and a jolly good time they did have, bumping, jumping and trying to keep still. After a delightful moonlight drive the crowd arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hutcheson, where they were received royally and spent a pleasant evening, chatting, laughing and looking happy. Miss Stella Hutcheson looked charming presiding over a dainty tea table, assisted by one of the D-i-e-k-s. After partaking of the good things provided the party started on their homeward trip. Arriving at Redmond, they found the town in slumber with the exception of a ray of light from the office of Dr. Kieffer, but as the "Bill of Health" was good the team proceeded to Kirkland, one and all having enjoyed a splendid time.

The most unique club in Kirkland is, we believe, the "Hen Club," to which belong the young people of Happy Hollow. Mrs. MacKintosh heads the list, and we must say she makes a good member of the "Old Maids Club," another name they bear, even if she is married. Close on her heels follows Margaret Clark, the worst, or the best, shall we say, old maid in town.

Janie Cartwright, Victoria Hall, Molly Blakelin, Lena Hutcheson, Hutcheson and Ada Adams finish the list of members.

All that is necessary to belong to this club, is to live in Happy Hollow, and above everything else make the solemn oath that you can have a jolly time without the boys. We can give proof that it has been done. You don't know what you have missed if you never had a Hen party surprise you. Ask Francis Boggs what it is like. He can tell you; for last Thursday night, just as he had succeeded in getting one boot and sock off, the front door opened and in rushed all the members of the club, calling "Here comes the Hen party." The occasion was his sixteenth birthday, and before the evening was over he was well aware of his sixteen years. What's more, if he had said before that he was "sixteen and never been kissed," he couldn't say it after the party went home. Joe Cartwright was there and tried to help Francis out, but the girls were too much for him. Mrs. Cartwright was there, too, but she and Mrs. Boggs were just as big girls as any of them.

Sandwiches and ice cream and cake made everyone glad that Francis was sixteen years old.

Mr. Boggs says that he is going to be sixteen every year if we will just treat him as we did Francis. That's a question to which the club will give serious thought.

Watch the paper for the next item of fun in this part of Kirkland. Halloween and a progressive supper are being talked about now.

Three cheers for the girls who can get along so famously without the boys.

court, just before statehood was granted the territory, and woman suffrage was declared unconstitutional. We did not have time to take it to the supreme court before the constitutional convention, and afterwards, we did not act mean and hold up statehood.

"After Washington became a state they would not keep their promise, and we have never had it. The next campaign instituted in the West, however, will be in Washington. California women are after equal suffrage, too, but we are to come before them. You see, we don't desire to carry on campaigns in two adjoining states at the same time but wish to concentrate our energies in one state."
