VOL. IV KIRKLAND, KING COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1910. NO. 5

GRAND JURY MAY RECOMMEND 17 HOUR SERVICE

INVESTIGATION SHOWS WEST SEATTLE FERRY LOST UNTIL RUNNING SCHEDULE WAS DOUBLED

The King County grand jury, which is now in session and which has been investigating the various phases of civic activities for the past few weeks, is now considering the advisability of re-arranging the ferry schedule and maintaining a double shift, thus keeping the boat running practically seventeen hours per day. By inquiries they ascertained that the ferry which plies between Seattle and West Seattle was operated on a schedule very similar to the one in use here now and that it then was losing proposition. The distance there is about half that existing between Kirkland and Seattle and it was decided that the service should be doubled. In a surprisingly short time the boat became self-sustaining and is now a paying proposition.

The idea of the grand jury is precisely this: To increase the efficiency of the ferry service so that it will be possible for working men to live on the East Side and hold positions in Seattle. In order that this may be brought about, the force operating the boat at the present time will have to be doubled. At first thought it will seem that this will necessitate a needless expense upon the taxpayers without a corresponding benefit to the general public. For the present such a result will probably be true, but if we are to judge from the instance cited above of the West Seattle ferry, the outcome would work to splendid advantage to the residents of the East Side.

If this plan is put into effect it will afford an opportunity for the Kirkland Development Company to sell much of their land at a good profit. If they fail to offer their holdings at a reasonable figure, it will be clearly proven that those who believe that the company does not wish to sell are correct in their opinions. If good transportation facilities are afforded, the Land Company can call the attention of the Seattle public to the fine residential district which is unused on this side of the lake. Cheaper land values and cheaper rentals, the pure, free air so unknown in the thickly settled, congested residence districts of a city would appeal to every lover of the freedom which the East Side affords.

At the present time people residing in Kirkland are about sixty minutes away from Pioneer Square. Seattle property out fifty minutes is selling at the rate of at least $800 per lot; fair houses renting for probably $20 to $30 per month. Now, with a good boat service, what would there be to hinder people from living out 50 minutes (which would be the time required if the boat service is remedied) on the East Side of Lake Washington? Surely the people of Seattle could not be more cordial than are the residents of this vicinity; nor is the air purer than here; nor do garden vegetables grow any better in Seattle, and certainly a cow would do better and cost less on the East Side. There are some of the advantages, yet there are others. Lots sell for from $50 up, and houses rent from $12 to $15, while the view is the most beautiful one on the shores of Lake Washington.

Schools, lodges and churches have been exerting their silent influence, so that the advantages which this side afford a man with a family for the rearing of his children under watchful parental care are manifold greater than in any throbbing business center.

FITZGERALD - HUTCHESON WEDDING.

At the residence of Mrs. S. B. Hutcheson at Avondale, on the eighth inst., were married Miss Lena Hutcheson and Mr. William Fitzgerald, of that place. Miss B. Duffy attended the bride, while the groom was supported by Mr. J. Hutcheson. Rev. C. E. Newberry, of Kirkland, was the officiating minister.

At 8 p. m. the wedding guests assembled in the parlor, which was tastefully decorated with ferns and flowers. Miss Jean Graham rendered the wedding march. The parties took their station under a great arch of ferns, and as silence fell upon the guests, the minister began the solemn service which makes of twain, one flesh. This was followed by the usual congratulations and examination of the many wedding presents, and then all sat down to a dainty lunch. Afterward, the young couple, followed by showers of rice, old shoes, and hearty good wishes, departed for their own home at the foot of Lake Samamish where they begin the building of a home.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ACTS

$150,000 TO BE SPENT SPENT THIS YEAR

The rivers and harbors bill of the last congress provides for an appropriation of $150,000 for a lock which is to be constructed in the Lake Washington canal, at the mouth of the cut near Ballard. The cost of the project is to be borne jointly by the government and by the residents of this and adjoining districts.

The Scientific American of January 29th contained a very interesting discussion of the undertaking and while the facts may be familiar to most, they still will be of passing interest to some. The two canals, one from Lake Union to the Sound, the other from Lake Washington to the lake mentioned above. The total cost is estimated at about five million dollars and when completed will represent one of the greatest advantages which Seattle possesses.

There are to be two small locks or chambers within one large lock. The larger one is to be about 800 feet long, 80 feet wide and 36 feet deep, thus being able to take almost any vessel afloat, while the smaller one will be 150 feet long, 30 feet wide and 16 feet deep.

At present the water front at Elliott Bay is but about five miles, but when the canals are completed the water frontage will be increased more than ten times the present amount. Lake Washington will be lowered, but that will work to advantage in that many localities which are now swampy will be reclaimed.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done! Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless--would you? Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth? Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No help, No pay" contract. I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same--or else pass their prescriptions by. If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement. When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not dose the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys for that is wrong. Yearning to cast away that mistaken idea in medicine. The books below will tell you how I am succeeding. These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its never-ending action or impulse. These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize these weak or failing inside nerves. All of these facts tell why I am able to say, "It is free if it fails". This is why I say "take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer". So write me today for the order. I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to issue my medicines to the sick. But write me first for the order. All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line please--and thus save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need. A postal will do. Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours--and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis. Which Book Shall I Send You?

KIRKLAND THE BIRTHPLACE OF

ONE OF THE GREATEST DISCOVERIES OF THE AGE.

Few of our citizens realize that the old gentleman who lived among us for nearly three years was one of the medical discoverers of the century, yet such is the fact.

For years people have been using the most injurious drugs in the form of tablets and powders to allay headache and neuralgia, and indeed, Mr. Fullerton, the originator of Zundra, nearly fell a victim to those poisons. We read almost daily of deaths from these causes.

Zundra, the harmless inhalant, was discovered by the merest accident and instantly relieved a severe headache from which Mr. Fullerton was suffering. Realizing that he had found a good thing, he carried a small bottle in his pocket for future use, and whenever a friend complained of a headache, tried it on him, always with the same gratifying results. Using it for headaches, Mr. Fullerton discovered it was curing his catarrh from which he had suffered for over twenty years and for which he had tried every possible remedy. He continued its use faithfully and it cured the catarrh and saved him from an operation.

Mr. Fullerton put the wonderful preparation on sale at the A.-Y.-P. Exposition and it received such flattering testimonials from the scores of doctors who tried it, and from the multitude who were cured of headaches and hay fever that it was decided to incorporate and now the Zundra Medical Co., is shipping this life saving, harmless but efficient remedy to every state in the Union. The company is also giving the public an opportunity to get stock before extensive advertising makes it too expensive. So many large fortunes have been made out of patent medicines that those who can spare ten, a hundred, or a thousand dollars should avail themselves of this opportunity. All the money received from the sales of stock will go into advertising, and it, with the already large advertising contracts that have been entered into, will make Zundra a household name in every family in the United States. When this is brought about it will mean a fortune for all those who hold stock in the company. Stock is now being sold for par value, $1.00 a share, and it is freely predicted that those same shares will be worth at least $10 within two years. As the money received from the sale of stock all goes into advertising, every dollar paid in increases the value of the stock. The head office of the company is temporarily located at 602 New York Block, Seattle.

Samples of the medicine can be obtained free at the News office.

SEATTLE CHINESE TO HAVE NEW LOCATION

Seattle, Feb. 5.—The principal portion of Chinatown, for years located on Washington street, is to be moved. The Chinese propose to move because the present quarters have been outgrown and do not afford opportunity for the local Chinese merchants to develop their trade as extensively as they desire.

An entirely new Chinatown is to be built. Old, out-of-date buildings, with dark basements and small cluttered-up rooms, are to be abandoned for modern buildings carefully designed to house the Chinese population of Seattle.

The site for the new Chinatown will be on King street, between Seventh and Ninth avenues. Work on two of the new buildings has already been commenced. The Quong Tuck Company has a tract 120 by 140 feet at Seventh and King streets. The Wa Chong Company recently purchased the southeast double corner of Seventh avenue and King street. Chinese have purchased double corners at Eighth avenue and King, and have nearly a thousand feet of street frontage in that vicinity.

All of this property is vacant, being recently regaded as part of the Jackson street regrade contract. The electric line of the Seattle, Renton & Southern railway passes through the heart of the district.

New York, Feb. 8.—Twenty-six manufacturing firms of the Paper Board Association, indicted by the federal grand jury last December as members of a combination in restraint of trade, took the easiest legal course yesterday and entered a plea of guilty as an association, in the United States circuit court. This ends the second organization, formed by John H. Parks. The fiber and manila combine met a similar fate in the federal courts some time ago.

ASK COMMISSION TO DECIDE

SPECIAL COMMITTEE FAILS TO SETTLE TRANS-SHIPMENT QUESTION.

All Parties to Controversy Agree to Ask Interstate Commerce Commission to Investigate and Settle Matters at Issue for All Time.

Seattle, Feb. 5.—Railroad officials, lumber and shingle manufacturers and wholesalers, sitting as a special committee to consider the transit-shipment question in all its angles, yesterday gave up all hope of solving the various questions at issue themselves, and instead decided to request the interstate commerce commission to institute an investigation on the Coast at once and promulgate a ruling settling for all time the transit-shipment questions now disturbing the lumber industry of the Northwest.

Railroad officials representing all the lines serving Northwest lumber and shingle manufacturers heartily concurred in the suggestion advanced by the manufacturers that the aid of the interstate commerce commission be invoked, much to the surprise of many who thought the carriers would resist any attempt to secure the interference of the commission.

Acting on the conclusions reached yesterday, the lumber and shingle manufacturers will at once assume the initiative and invite the interstate commerce commission to institute an investigation and hearing in the Northwest and issue a ruling bidding all the railroads to observe certain rules covering transit shipments and the privileges attending them.

Agreement Not Possible

At the outset of the conference it became apparent that an agreement on the question of transit shipments was impossible. It was shown that there was a diversity of opinion on the part of the railroads between Chicago and the Minnesota Transfer over the question of abolishing transit shipments that could not be overcome by ordinary means. It was shown that these connecting roads fear that they will lose business if the transit shipments, storage and diversion privileges were abolished.

The manufacturers submitted that the transit shipments were a menace to the industry, and that the carriers need only to look to the demoralization of the yellow pine industry and the shingle trade of the northwest to see that it is only a question of time when the Northwest lumber trade will be similarly upset.

Carriers Welcome Inquiry

The carriers submitted that they desired nothing so much as to see the lumber industry, which furnishes so large a tonnage, in a prosperous condition, and admitted that, in view of the signed protests recently made by the lumber and shingle shippers of the Northwest, something must be wrong with existing shipping rules, and that they would welcome an investigation of the entire question by an unbiased body, such as the interstate commerce commission.

ABERDEEN CARRIES BALL FIGHT INTO THE COURTS

Seattle, Feb. 5.—Aberdeen's threat to take into court its fight for a base ball franchise in the Northwestern league has been made good. Yesterday, on behalf of the Aberdeen club, Bridges & Brunner, Aberdeen attorneys, filed a complaint in Judge Frater's department of the superior court of King county. Judge Frater thereupon issued an alternative writ or mandate, requiring the members of the Northwestern league to reinstate Aberdeen or show cause for refusal.

This hearing is set for next Friday at 9:30 o'clock. At the same time Judge Frater set next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, for a hearing on the application of the Aberdeen club for an injunction restraining the league from making up its schedule of games.

The complaint is a long one. Stripped of its legal phraseology and boiled down it means that Aberdeen has appealed to the courts to get back into the league, and that the Aberdeen stockholders will try to prevent the Northwestern league from operating unless the Black Cats are included in the 1910 circuit. The injunction, if issued, will keep the directors from making up their schedule for the season.

UNITED STATES OFFERED BIG PLANT FOR TESTS

Olympia, Feb. 8.—Gov. M. E. Hay has received a letter from the president of the Hazlewood Company, of Spokane, containing an unusual proposal, which might assist in solving the much discussed problem of the present high price of eatables. The letter has been referred by the governor to the secretary of the agricultural department at Washington. It says: "As our national government has decided to investigate the cost of living, particularly that part pertaining to the distribution of food products, we would like to propose that the United States senate or secretary of Agriculture, or both, put a representative in charge of Hazlewood plant to dictate prices for ninety days or one year."

"As our plants throughout the Northwest do a business in the neighborhood of two million dollars a year in food products that enter into the actual cost of living, we believe that ours would be the best to demonstrate what is right in the way of profits."

PEACE HAS BEEN ARRANGED

TAFT PROGRAM OF LEGISLATION AGREED TO BY BOTH FACTIONS.

Statehood, Postal Savings Banks Federal Incorporation, Giving President Authority to Withdraw Lands, Creating Court of Commerce on List.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The administration program, as revised by leaders of the senate and house, and given the stamp of White House approval, comprises the following legislation:

Statehood for Arizona and New Mexico in the form of the senate bill, which provides for ratification by congress of the constitution of the new states after approval by the president.

Postal savings banks with safeguards against funds being transferred from sections where originally deposited to the money markets.

Giving the president authority to withdraw from entry public lands desired for conservation purposes or for classification, the withdrawals to remain in force until revoked by him or by act of congress.

Federal incorporation open to the voluntary application of concerns engaged in interstate business and willing to subscribe to federal regulation.

Creating a court of commerce and amending the interstate commerce act as provided by the Townsend-Elkins bill.

Creating a legislative council for Alaska, members to be appointed by the president.

Later in the session it may be decided to make additions to the administration program by adding measures now deemed of secondary importance.

For instance, President Taft has told his advisers that he is inclined to come out strongly for ship subsidy in some form, and it is possible he also may urge for passage the bill providing for certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $300,000,000 to provide money to carry on reclamation work.

It was stated by a number of senators that the president had the situation in the house well in hand, and that Republicans, regulars and "insurgents" alike, have agreed to put their shoulders to the wheel and roll the Taft policies through that body.

Assurances were given that there would be no conflict between "insurgents" and the rules committee. This would be avoided, it was said, by caucuses to be held to design new machinery where any is found to be necessary for the passage of administration bills.

In return for this concession to the "insurgents" it was stated that Mr. Taft had been promised that they would not permit their antipathy for Speaker Cannon to interfere with the program.

MILLION TREES PLANTED IN THREE COUNTIES ALONE

Wenatchee, Feb. 5.—The development of land in Douglas, Chelan and Okanogan counties last year is shown by a recent report of Inspector Darlington, who reports that 1,152,385 fruit trees were set out. Of these 685,281 were set out in Chelan county, 329,935 in Okanogan county and 137,142 in Douglas county.

Great preparations are being made in the Methow valley in Okanogan county, Ephrata in Grant county and in the sections along the Columbia river for this season. It is estimated that 2,000,000 fruit trees will be set out.

ORTIS HAMILTON GIVES UP FIGHT FOR LIBERTY

Olympia, Feb. 5.—Ortis Hamilton, former adjutant general of the national guard of Washington, convicted of having embezzled $1,188 of the state's money, next Monday will dismiss his appeal to the supreme court. In consideration of this the state agreed to drop the cases now pending against Hamilton charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses and forgery. This is done at the solicitation of Boyd Hamilton, president of the Idaho Bankers' association, a brother of the prisoner, who agrees to have Ortis Hamilton taken to Walla Walla at once to start serving his sentence of from one to ten years.

Many Corporations Delinquent

About 15,000 corporations now delinquent in the annual corporation tax will be stricken from the records in the office of the secretary of state on February 23. Attorney General Bell says in an opinion that any method Auditor Howell decides to adopt will be sufficient to strike off the names. Mr. Howell wants simply to mark the index record to show the license had been cancelled, and the attorney general says it is sufficient.

The United States and the British empire produce 82.7 per cent of the world's gold supply. Germany and France, which produce no gold, and Russia, which produces only some $27,000,000 worth a year, feel compelled to hoard vast amounts of it to be prepared for emergencies, such as sudden war. This is the reason why the banks of these countries begin a process of hoarding gold whenever there is any likelihood of trouble.

Japan, the country that is not bound by traditions in her search for the best manner of doing things, has tried our national bank plan, and, finding it not at all satisfactory, has adopted the European plan of the central bank. The Bank of Japan is capitalized at $15,000,000. Its circulation at present is more than $170,000,000, and its deposits exceed $200,000,000. It issues all the notes of the country and thus controls the currency situation. Besides the Bank of Japan there are other semi-official banks filling various specific functions for the government.

The chairman of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada was asked, at Montreal, if the report was correct that they had bought the Ontario tobacco crop. His answer was that tobacco grown in Canada to-day was superior to the American-grown leaf from the same type of seed, for the reason that the soil in the United States has been used for a number of years and the Canadian soil is practically virgin soil for tobacco growing purposes, and therefore produced a better quality. The proof of this is that the consumption is constantly increasing.—Consular Reports.

Professor Ranke some time ago brought out a new fact concerning the brain of a man as compared with that of other animals. It has long been known that the brain of a man does not weigh as much as that of a whale, or an elephant, and that there are birds and apes whose brains are heavier than man's in proportion to the weight of their bodies. But Professor Ranke showed that the way to reveal the actual superiority of the human brain is to compare its weight with that of the spinal cord. Measured in this way, man's brain is proportionately far heavier than that of any of the lower animals.—Harper's.

When Man Was a Marine Animal.

It was M. Quintan, a French physiologist, who several years ago wrote a paper to show that the colorless fluid in which the red corpuscles of our blood float and which is called the "blood serum" is the same fluid as that which constituted the primeval sea. The earliest forms of life which floated in the primeval sea were such that the cells and tissues of which they were constituted were always bathed by this primeval fluid. When silica became a constituent of the sea these animals may have coated themselves with silicious coverings, but many of their cells were still bathed by the fluid, and some of them as they passed from the sea to the land may have closed up their alimentary canals, so that a distinction arose between their internal organs and their outer superficies, but still, for the good of their cells, they still bathed them in the saline fluid. To do so more effectively they took the saline fluid ashore with them in the form of a blood serum, and it is this blood serum which we carry about with us to-day, the most evident relic of the age when we were marine animals.

AMERICAN WAY DEFECTIVE

WATERWAYS COMMISSION MAKES PRELIMINARY REPORT.

Some Weaknesses of Our System Outlined in Comparison With Other Countries—Increase of Army or Other Trained Engineers Urged.

The national waterways commission, which spent last fall investigating river and harbor questions in Europe, in a preliminary report to congress declares that the existing organization for the carrying on of waterways improvements is defective. The supply of army engineers it says is inadequate and engineers are detailed for too short a time on important projects. Two plans are proposed for remedying this condition: first, to create a corps of civilian engineers, under a department of public works; or, second, to enlarge the present engineer corps of the army, charging their maintenance to the river and harbor work and not, as now, to the army.

The European System

Relative to methods of financing waterways work the commission would like to see tried in the United States a system of division that has operated very successfully in Europe. Under the system local authorities pay an adequate portion of the cost of improvements benefitting their immediate localities. It is unfair, the commission believes, that inland cities should bear a share of the cost of improving cities situated on waterways, especially when such improvements will increase the opportunities of the latter cities to become competitors of the former. The commission believes there should be some method of participation in proportion to the local benefits to be derived. This is the plan all over Europe, where it works to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. Such a policy, it is pointed out, diminishes the number of unwise and unprofitable schemes proposed. Schemes that are not all right will not be pushed if the promoters have to pay their share of the cost, and what is equally important, worthy schemes will be pushed faster, because of the reduced drain on the general treasury.

Concerning the method of financing, the commission says it does not believe in issuing government bonds.

As to the kind of improvements that should be made, the commission commends the system in operation in the United States for more than a generation, and shows it is as good as any in operation anywhere in the world. The commission favors the "open river" system—that is to say, no locks and dams where they can be done away with. This is the German policy, and is peculiarly adapted to the upper Mississippi river, which, the report says, is perhaps better adapted to this kind of improvement than any other stream in the world.

The report strongly urges that local communities have necessary terminals and levee facilities, the charges for them to be regulated by the secretary of war. If this is not done the commission thinks congress should go slowly in the matter of improvements.

Inland Canals Not Favored

The report condemns the construction of canals in the United States under present conditions as being too expensive and not warranted by commercial requirements. It especially recommends that the United States should provide only the main channels leading to central anchorages in rivers and harbors, the local communities to provide the necessary lateral channels leading to docks and wharves. The government, the commission believes, ought not to benefit private property by constructing canals to that property. There has been a great difference of practice in this respect, as shown by appropriation bills from time to time, but the commission expects that hereafter there will be no more appropriations for private benefit in the direction just mentioned.

Attention is called in the report to the fact that on all American rivers, the Ohio excepted, terminal facilities are inadequate. Conveniences for loading, unloading and handling freight on these rivers are not as good as in Germany or on the Great Lakes of this country, or along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. These conveniences, the commission believes, the local authorities ought to provide.

The commission discusses the control of dams in navigable waters and seems to hold that permission ought not to be given for the construction of dams in navigable streams for power purposes. Where the United States owns a dam full charge should be made to anybody using power created by that dam.

A careful comparison is made in the report between conditions in this country and in Europe, and reasons are given why American waterways have not been used as freely as the waterways of Europe.

Relations of Railroads and Waterways

The relations between the railroads and waterways are discussed, showing that the commission is not a unit on this question. The majority seems to hold that there is merit in a system of minimum rates below which the railroads may not go in competing with the waterways for traffic. But this recommendation is opposed on the theory that the public should always have the right of accepting the lowest possible rate for service of this character.

The commission holds that waterway conditions will be benefited by a system of through bills of lading, through routes and rates and the transfer of traffic at terminal points.

Four bills now pending in congress will be affected by this preliminary report of the national waterways commission—the river and harbor bill, the interstate commerce bill, the general dam bill and the conservation bill providing for the disposition of water on government property within the states.

STATISTICS ON IMMIGRATION SHOW ENORMOUS INRUSH

Washington, Feb. 7.—Interesting comparative facts are disclosed in a study of the immigration into the United States for the seven years ended June 30 last, in which time 6,617,155 aliens were admitted, more than 70 per cent of whom came from Southern and Eastern Europe and Western Asia, composed largely of Southern Italians, Greeks, Hungarians, Hebrews, Roumanians, Slavs, Bulgarians, Turks, Armenians and Syrians.

The addition to the population in those seven years was nearly 1,000,000 more than the combined population of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, the two Dakotas and Nebraska at the last census—5,878,785.

Estimates are that immigration to the United States in the present fiscal year will aggregate more than 900,000.

ANTI-REBATE LEGISLATION BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Washington, Feb. 7.—The big railroads in the territory north of the Ohio river and East of the Mississippi and the "forwarding agencies" of the East are about to engage in the final round before the supreme court of the United States of the fight over the rights of these shipping agencies.

The contest results from the anti-rebate legislation. The question to be decided is whether the railroads, in refusing to allow the agencies to ship a carload of merchandise made up of parcels from various individuals on carload rates, are unjustly discriminating against them in favor of shippers who own the entire carload shipment.

The interstate commerce commission held that such was an unjust discrimination.

RESOURCES OF ALASKA ALL BUT UNTOUCHED

New York, Feb. 6.—Alaska is the richest mining country in the world and has wealth enough to make a million American's rich, according to Col. John H. Conrad, who has a town in Alaska named after him, and who has just come East to urge the government to develop the Northern territory.

"If congress will help the railroad builders to open up the country, the nation will soon get the money back a thousand fold," said Col. Conrad.

"The resources of Alaska are all but untouched.

"There is a disposition in politics to cry 'Wolf, wolf,' when Alaska is mentioned, but while we are delaying action the Canadian Northwest is getting a tremendous start on us.

AMERICA AND GERMANY AGREED UPON TARIFF

Washington, February 5.—Concessions by both the United States and Germany have averted a threatened tariff war. Negotiations have been concluded between the two countries which settle the question of a minimum and maximum tariff rate with the exception of the cattle and dressed meat issue. This was eliminated from the present negotiations and will be taken up later in separate diplomatic representation.

Under the agreement just concluded minimum rates will be exchanged for the entire minimum list of Germany. The result is considered advantageous to both countries.

NEW SOCIETY FOR WORLD PEACE

OBJECTS ENDORSED IN LETTERS FROM PRESIDENT AND OTHERS.

American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes To Begin Vigorous Campaign of Education—Letters from Taft and Knox.

Baltimore, Feb. 6.—There was organized last night at the residence of Theodore Marburg, the American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes, which will devote itself principally to issuing articles by leading men of all countries on subjects indicated by the title of the organization and to organize meetings of national scope in various parts of this country from time to time with a view to educating the people as to the desirability of promoting the peace of the world by settling points of international controversy in the same general way in which differences between individuals are now settled. In the meeting the following letters were read:

"The White House, Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.

"My Dear Mr. Marburg:—I have learned with interest of the plans to form an 'American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes.' The leaflets which you propose to publish, together with the meetings of national scope which you are planning to hold from time to time, may have a very great influence on the development of public opinion on this important subject. If the proposed court of arbitral justice at The Hague becomes an accomplished fact, there will still remain the task of securing the adhesion of a number of powers to the court, and the very important task of so cultivating public opinion in various countries as to incline governments to resort to the court when the occasion calls for it. There is no other single way in which the cause of peace and disarmament can be so effectually promoted as by the firm establishment of a permanent international court of justice.

Sincerely yours,
"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

"Department of State, Washington, D. C., Feb. 3, 1910.

"My Dear Mr. Marburg:—You are quite right in assuming that I take not only a keen personal, but official interest in the movement for which your society is to be organized, for, as you are doubtless aware, I have, in an identical circular note, dated October 18, 1909, urged the powers to invest the International Prize Court with the jurisdiction and functions of a court of arbitral justice, thus completing the work of the second Hague peace conference by carrying into effect its recommendation that the court of arbitral justice be constituted through diplomatic channels. Should the identical note be favorably received, and should the court of arbitral justice be thus constituted, the consenting nations would have a permanent international tribunal for the judicial determination of controversies arising out of peace as well as war, and it cannot be doubted that such a tribunal would, in large measure, render to nations the services which national courts have performed for private litigants. By the settlement of controversies susceptible of judicial determination before they have reached an acute stage, the cause of war would be minimized and a first step taken toward the gradual decrease of armament.

"Regretting my inability to testify by my presence the great interest I have in the organization of your society, I am very sincerely yours,
"P. C. KNOX."

Mr. Marburg has also received letters from senators and representatives endorsing his plans, including one from Senator Elihu Root, of New York.

WHITMAN FARMERS FOR LOCAL WAREHOUSE PLAN

Garfield, Feb. 5.—The regular county meeting of the Farmers' Co-operative Protective Union took place here with nearly 200 delegates present. Resolutions were passed endorsing the action of the state convention at Walla Walla as to construction of local warehouses and the general federation of the various warehouses of the grand jurisdiction. President L. C. Crow was requested to call the presidents or representatives from the various local warehouses together at an early date to devise a plan of general co-operation in the sale of products.

Removal of Flood Tariffs Urged

New York, Feb. 5.—Passage of bills now pending in congress, absolutely removing all tariffs from foodstuffs of whatever description, is declared by President Mahr of the Mercantile Exchange, to be the only real solution of the "higher-price-of-food" problem.

GREAT DAM PLANNED FOR NEW YAKIMA PROJECT

North Yakima, Feb. 5.—Details of the construction of a large storage dam at Lake Kachess by the reclamation service were discussed at an important conference of reclamation engineers here the past week.

The purpose of the dam is to store the flood waters so that they may be used throughout the summer in watering the lands under the Kittitas project and under the proposed high line which will take in over 300,000 acres of high land in the Yakima valley from here to the Columbia river. Definite plans have not been worked out.

LABOR MAYOR SAYS HE IS READY FOR RECALL FIGHT

San Francisco, Feb. 5.—"If the Bohemian and Pacific Union clubs and the gentlemen in skirts who frequent another club in this city want a fight, I will give it to them and to a finish. 'If they ever start the recall, I will see that they get the necessary signers for their petition. We will find out where we stand with the people.'"

In these words Mayor P. H. McCarthy replied to rumors reaching him that a movement was on foot to invoke the recall system against him as a result of his numerous dismissals from office of holdover city commissioners.

GOLD OUTPUT FOR 1909 SHOWS SOME INCREASE

Washington, Feb. 5.—In a preliminary statement issued by the geological survey it is shown that Alaska's gold production last year increased $1,089,860 over the previous year, while the total increase in the country was $1,672,200 over the 1908 yield. The entire yield of the country reached the unprecedented yield of $99,232,200.

A total gold production in excess of $100,000,000 is predicted for 1910.

EVERETT-MONCTON LINE TO BE COMPLETED NOVEMBER 1

Everett, Feb. 8.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railroad is hastening construction of its line to Everett from Moncton, and H. C. Henry, the contractor, when the weather becomes more settled, will begin construction on the road each way, north and south, from Tolt, in the Cherry valley. The Milwaukee will rush the construction of the Everett line, intending to haul freight into this city by November 1.

MANY IN ATTENDANCE AT FRUIT CULTURE LECTURE

State College, Pullman, Feb. 5.—The two weeks lecture and laboratory course in fruit growing, the first course of the kind offered at the state college, opened with an enrollment of 150. The quarters which had been prepared for the lectures in the botanical laboratories in Science hall proved entirely inadequate for the throng of students, who were moved bodily to the chapel assembly auditorium. The enrollment exceeds by 200 per cent the enrolment for the winter school for farmers now in progress.

UNION LABEL UPHOLD BY STATE SUPREME COURT

Olympia, Feb. 7.—The supreme court has affirmed the conviction in the King county courts of James Montgomery, of Seattle, who must pay the penalty for using the label of the Allied Printing Trades Council of Seattle without authority.

Montgomery printed some cards for a candidate in the fall election of 1908. The cards bore the imprint of the Allied Printing Trades Council, which brought suit.

In the Montgomery case the supreme court holds that the label was properly registered and that it cannot be used unless authorized.

Suburban Road Subject to Commission

Olympia, Feb. 5.—The railroad commission has decided that the Seattle, Renton & Southern street railway is an interurban line, and the company has been ordered to file an annual report with the state commission. The commission holds that as it operates a line from Seattle to Renton it is an interurban line. This means the commission will assume jurisdiction over all lines that operate outside of the city limits of any town, whether called interurban or suburban lines.

Pacific Cruisers at Honolulu

Honolulu, Feb. 1.—The Pacific cruiser fleet arrived here yesterday, one day ahead of the original schedule laid out in Washington. The fleet sailed from Yokohama January 21. The fleet will sail for San Francisco on February 8.

Undertaker—You will, of course, ride in the first coach with your mother-in-law? Widower—Is that absolutely necessary? Undertaker—Oh, yes, certainly; it is the correct thing. Widower—Then all I can say is that my whole day's enjoyment is spoilt!

She—Oh, Jack, do excuse me for getting here so late. You poor fellow, you've had to wait an hour for me. He—Oh, no, it's all right. I've only just come. She (sharply)—What! So that's the way you treat me, is it? If I'd come at the time agreed you'd have made me wait a whole hour. (Pouts.)—Boston Transcript.

"I hope you don't mind my asking," said a woman, diffidently, "but should I call you professor or doctor?" "Oh, call me anything you like," was the great man's rejoinder. "Some people call me an old idiot." "Really?" the lady murmured with sweet innocence. "But, then, they would be people who knew you intimately."—London Spare Moments.

FINDING THE POLE

BY JULES VERNE.

CHAPTER III.—(Continued.)

Hatteras had aimed well and before either of his companions came up he had plunged his knife in the animal's throat.

"Hurrah! Bravo!" shouted Johnson and the doctor, but Hatteras stood cool and unexcited, gazing at his prostrate foe.

The beast was very fat, and weighed 1,500 pounds. The hunters were so famished that they had hardly patience to cut up the carcass and carry home the flesh to be cooked. It needed all the doctor's persuasion to prevent them eating it raw.

On entering the hut, they were struck with the coldness of the atmosphere. The fire was out. The exciting business of the morning had made Johnson neglect his accustomed duty.

The doctor got the tinder and asked Johnson for the steel.

The sailor went through his pockets and searched the hut. The steel was gone.

"Not got the steel!" the doctor repeated, shuddering. "Look again."

"But it was gone."

"This is a serious business, doctor," said Hatteras, gravely.

Each sat looking at the other, and at death. It was serious. Then the doctor sprang to his feet.

"An idea has occurred to me."

"What?" said Hatteras.

"Let us make a lens."

"How?"

"With ice."

"We'll try it. Bring your hatchet, Johnson."

A good-sized piece was soon cut off, about a foot in diameter, and the doctor set to work. He chopped it into rough shape with the hatchet, then with his knife, making a smooth surface as possible. He finished the polishing process with his fingers, rubbing away until he had obtained a lens as transparent as crystal.

The sun was shining, the tinder was held beneath the ice lens to catch the rays. In a few seconds it took fire, to Johnson's rapturous delight.

He danced about like an idiot, almost beside himself with joy, and shouted, "Hurrah! hurrah!" while Clawbonny hurried back into the hut and rekindled the fire. It was soon roaring, and it was not many minutes before the savory odor of broiled bear steak roused Bell from his torpor.

What a feast this meal was to the poor starving men may be imagined. The doctor, however, counseled moderation in eating, and set the example himself.

"This is a glad day for us," he said, "and we have no fear of wanting food all the rest of our journey. Still, we must not forget we have further to go yet, and I think the sooner we start the better."

"We cannot be far off now," said Altamont, who could speak almost perfectly again; "we must be within forty-eight hours' march of the Porpoise."

"I hope we'll find something there to make a fire with," said the doctor, smiling. "My lens needs the sun, and there are plenty of days when it does not make its appearance here, within less than four degrees of the pole."

"Less than four degrees!" repeated Altamont, with a sigh; "yes, my ship went further than any other has ever ventured."

"It is time we started," said Hatteras, abruptly.

On the way the doctor asked Altamont what had brought him so far north. The American made only evasive replies. Clawbonny whispered to Johnson: "We've got two men that need looking after."

"You are right," said Johnson.

"Hatteras doesn't talk to this American, and I must say the man has not shown himself very grateful."

"I don't like the expression of his face," said Johnson.

"I think he suspects Hatteras' plan."

"Then you think that Altamont—"

"His ship was certainly on the road to the north pole."

"But don't Altamont say that he had been caught among the ice, and dragged there irresistibly?"

"He said so, but there was a strange smile on his lips."

Next day, after a hearty breakfast off bear's meat, the little party continued the route.

At last, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Altamont started up with a shout. Pointing to a white mass that no eye but his distinguished from the surrounding icebergs, he exclaimed in a loud, ringing voice:

"The Porpoise!"

The Porpoise was completely buried under the snow. Masts and rigging had been destroyed in the shipwreck, and she was lying on a bed of rocks so entirely on her side that the hull was uppermost.

"Never mind," said Hatteras, "we will fix it up and make ourselves comfortable there."

By night Bell had managed to make a tolerably level floor with planks and spars. Altamont was helped on board without much trouble. A sigh of satisfaction escaped him, as if he felt himself once more at home—a sigh which to Johnson's ear boded no good.

CHAPTER IV.

The Porpoise had been thoroughly equipped and provisioned for a long voyage. They found 6,150 pounds of flour, fat, and raisins; 2,000 pounds of salt beef and pork, 1,500 pounds of pemmican, 700 pounds of sugar, and the same of chocolate; a chest and a half of tea, weighing ninety-six pounds, 500 pounds of rice, several barrels of preserved fruits and vegetables, a quantity of lime juice, with all sorts of medicine, and 300 gallons of rum and brandy. There was also a large supply of gunpowder, ball and shot, and coal and wood in abundance.

Altogether, enough to last those five men more than two years. All fear of death from starvation or cold was at an end.

"Well, Hatteras, we're sure of enough to live on now," said the doctor, "and there is nothing to hinder us reaching the pole."

"The pole!" echoed Hatteras.

"Yes, why not? Can't we push our way overland in the summer?"

"We might overland, but how could we cross water?"

"Can't we build a boat out of the ship's planks?"

"Out of an American ship!" exclaimed the captain, contemptuously.

Clawbonny was prudent enough to change the conversation.

In five days the men had built an ice house on shore not far from the boat, also a powder magazine and a shelter for the dogs.

The walls of the house were over five feet thick, and the windows made of polished sheet ice resembling portholes for cannon. Every part was as solid as possible, and a parapet was erected outside for defense against any enemies.

While all these preparations for winter were going on, Altamont was fast regaining strength. He was a type of the American, shrewd, intelligent, full of energy and resolution; enterprising, bold, and ready for anything. He was a native of New York, he informed his companions, and had been a sailor from his boyhood.

The Porpoise had been equipped and sent out by a company of wealthy American merchants.

There were many points of resemblance between Altamont and Hatteras, but no friendship. With a greater show of frankness, he was in reality far more deep and crafty than Hatteras. His apparent openness did not inspire such confidence as the Englishman's gloomy reserve.

The doctor was in constant dread of a collision between the rival captains, and yet one must command invariably, and which should it be? Hatteras had the men, but Altamont had the ship. It was hard to say whose was the better right.

It required all the doctor's tact to keep things smooth. At last, in spite of all his endeavors, an outbreak came. It was at a grand banquet, a sort of "house-warming," held when the new habitation was completed.

This banquet was Dr. Clawbonny's idea. He was head cook, and made a wonderful pudding. Bell had shot a white hare and several ptarmigans, which made an agreeable variety from the pemmican and salt meat.

Clawbonny was cook and master of ceremonies, and brought in a pudding, himself adorned with the big apron and a knife at his belt.

After dinner different toasts were drunk in brandy. One was given to the United States, to which Hatteras made no response.

This over, the doctor introduced an interesting subject of conversation by saying:

"My friends, we have something yet to do. I suppose we should bestow a name on this continent, which we have found, and also on the several bays, peaks and promontories that we meet with. This has been invariably done by navigators."

"Quite right," said Johnson; "when once a place is named, it takes away the feeling of being castaways on an unknown shore."

Hatteras had taken no part in the conversation as yet, but seeing all eyes fixed on him, he rose at last, and said:

"If no one objects, I think the most suitable name we can give our house is that of its skillful architect, the best man among us. Let us call it 'Doctor's house.'"

"Just the thing!" said Bell.

"First rate!" exclaimed Johnson.

"Doctor's house!"

"We cannot do better," chimed in Altamont. "Hurrah for Dr. Clawbonny."

Three hearty cheers were given, in which Duke, the dog, joined lustily, barking his loudest.

"It is agreed, then," said Hatteras, "that this house is to be called 'Doctor's house.'"

The doctor modestly protested against the honor, but he was obliged to yield. The new habitation was formally named "Doctor's house."

"Now, then," said the doctor, "let us go on to name the most important of our discoveries."

"There is that immense sea which surrounds us, unfurrowed as yet by a single ship."

Altamont looked up quickly.

"A single ship!" he repeated. "I think you have forgotten the Porpoise. She certainly did not get here overland."

"Well, it wouldn't be hard to think so," replied Hatteras, "to look at her now."

"True enough, Hatteras," said Altamont, piqued, "but, after all, is not that better than being blown to atoms, like the Porpoise?"

Hatteras was about to reply when Clawbonny interposed.

"It is not a question of ships, my friends," he said, "but of a fresh sea."

"It is no new sea," returned Altamont; "it is in every polar chart, and has a name already. It is called the Arctic ocean, and I think it would be very inconvenient to alter its designation. Should we find out by and by, that, instead of being an ocean it is only a strait or gulf, it will be time enough to alter it then."

"So be it," said Hatteras.

"Very well, that is an understood thing, then," said the doctor, regretting that he had started the discussion.

"Let us proceed with the continent where we find ourselves at present," resumed Hatteras. "I am not aware that any name whatever has been affixed to it, even in the most recent charts."

He looked at Altamont as he spoke, who met his gaze steadily, and said:

"Possibly you may be mistaken again, Hatteras."

"Mistaken! What! This unknown continent, this virgin soil—"

"Has already a name," replied Altamont, coolly.

Hatteras was silent, but his lip quivered.

"And what name has it, then?" asked the doctor, astonished.

"My dear Clawbonny," replied the American, "it is the custom, not to say the right, of every navigator to christen the soil on which he is the first to set foot. It appears to me, therefore, that it is my privilege and—"

"But, sir," interrupted Johnson, nettled.

"It would be hard to prove that the Porpoise did not come here, even if she got here by land," continued Altamont, without noticing Johnson's protest. "The fact is indisputable," he added, looking at Hatteras.

"I dispute the claim," said the Englishman, restraining himself, by a powerful effort. "To name a country you must first discover it, I suppose, and that you certainly did not do. Where would you have been, sir, at this moment, pray? Lying twenty feet deep under the snow?"

"And without me, sir," retorted Altamont, hotly, "without me and my ship, where would you all be at this moment? Dead, from cold and hunger."

"Come, come, friends," said the doctor, "don't get to words; all that can be easily settled."

"Mr. Hatteras," said Altamont, "is welcome to name whatever territories he may discover, should he succeed in discovering any; but this continent belongs to me. I should not even consent to its having two names like Grinnell Land, which is also called Prince Albert's Land, because it was discovered almost simultaneously by an Englishman and an American. My right of priority is incontestable. No ship before mine ever touched this shore; no foot before mine ever trod this soil. I have given it a name, and that name it shall keep."

"And what is that name?" inquired the doctor.

"New America," replied Altamont. Hatteras trembled with suppressed passion, but by a violent effort restrained himself.

The Bishop Stayed.

The bishop of a Southern diocese was once making a missionary journey through Arkansas and the Indian Territory, and on his arrival at Natchez he said to the landlord of a hotel, "I have been traveling for a week, day and night, in a mall wagon, and I want a comfortable room."

"Sorry," said the landlord, "but I don't believe there's a vacant room in Natchez; there's a horse race, a Methodist conference and a political convention in the city, and every house is full up. The only thing I can give you is a shake-down." Then, observing the bishop's tired face, he added, "The best room in my house is rented to a noted gambler who usually remains out all night and seldom gets in before breakfast. If you will take the risk, you shall have his room; but if he should come in there'll be a row, I'll promise you that."

The bishop decided to take the risk. About 4 o'clock in the morning the gambler returned and promptly shook the bishop by the arm.

"Get out of here, or I'll put you out!" he shouted.

The bishop, the gentlest of men, raised himself on one elbow, so that it brought the muscles of his arm into full relief.

"My friend," he began quietly, "before you put me out, will you have the kindness to feel of my arm?"

The gambler put his hand on the bishop's arm.

"Stranger," he then said respectfully, "you can stay."

SURPRISE FOR A SHOPPER.

Could She Had Just Laid Down Picked Up by Another.

"Shouldn't you think," said the shopper, "that they'd lose lots of these Christmas cards, have lots of them stolen? One place where I went for cards they always have a whole roomful of them, Christmas cards and nothing else."

"You see this room crowded with customers, all the people that can get in, and to wait on them you see three or four or half a dozen saleswomen, enough I suppose to attend to the business. The customers go rummaging around, turning the cards over and searching for what they want, and pawing them over generally. I should think lots of them would get torn and bent and soiled; and what's to prevent anybody from picking up cards and carrying them away? Still, I don't suppose the people that come here would steal, anyway; but I did have one queer experience in that room the last time I shopped there."

"I had bought a bunch of cards and paid for them, and had them put in separate envelopes and then all in one big one, and then I saw some little cards that caught my fancy, that were two for five cents, and I took two of them and carried them to the saleswoman I had dealt with and said: 'Can't I put these right in this envelope?' and she said 'Certainly,' and that's what I did."

"But I couldn't hand the nickel to her because she had both hands full at that moment doing up some cards for somebody else, and so I said I would lay the five cents down here, on the table, and that's what I did. And then what do you suppose happened?"

"I stood there for a moment waiting to see the saleswoman pick it up, and as I stood there the woman standing beside me opened her purse and put that nickel in it."

"Why! I was so surprised that I didn't know what to say or do, and I didn't say or do anything and I don't know yet what to think of it."

TALKS ON ADVERTISING

To Combat Mail Order Houses.

Don't blame people for buying goods from the mail-order houses. Don't imagine that the average citizen is going to be moved by any great patriotic impulse to trade at home simply to benefit the community. The fact is that the average man is already feeling a little grouchily at the high prices of almost everything, and if he can find some way to buy his goods, wares and merchandise a little cheaper by sending away for them, he will probably send. Of course he is likely to be fooled. He is likely to get inferior goods, and all that, but what's the difference, if he sends away? The money is gone, and won't come back.

The place to head off on the mail-order buying is before it starts. And the way to head it off is to convince people that they can actually do better by trading at home. It can be done, but it takes some exercise of brains. Whenever a clever antagonist is using brains to devise schemes to get the best of you in some way, whether it is in a game of chess, a battle for blood, or a fight for business, it becomes necessary for you to use brains, too, or he will "get" you. The mail-order house is using brains in its advertising. In order to meet that sort of competition you, too, must use brains. You must study your advertising; plan it out carefully to meet the exact conditions which are presented. Make your advertising with this point in view; to convince prospective customers that you can sell them better goods at better prices than anyone else.

If these mail-order advertisements are sufficiently convincing, if they make people believe that they can get goods cheaper by sending away, the money will go, and no amount of high-sounding argument about patronizing home industries will do any good. The merchant himself buys where he can get goods cheapest and the customer will certainly do the same.

The way to meet such competition is to study their advertising. Make your advertising readable. Give the customer a square deal. Do not pretend to be selling goods at a loss. You are entitled to a profit and the customer has sense enough to know it. Make your profit a reasonable one, advertise your prices, and deliver the goods as advertised, and the customer will in most cases be satisfied. The customer would rather trade at home than send his money away, but he will not sacrifice his own welfare to do so, and you wouldn't do it yourself.—Merchants' Journal.

It doesn't take a man long to become used to making a fool of himself.

Coughs of Children

Especially night coughs. Nature needs a little help to quiet the irritation, control the inflammation, check the progress of the disease. Our advice is—give the children Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor if this is his advice also. He knows best. Do as he says.

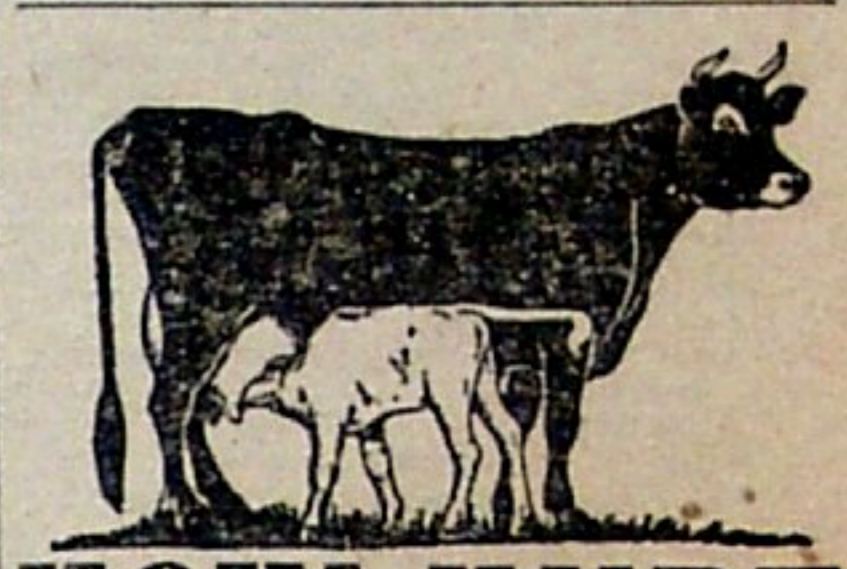

If you think constipation is of trifling consequence, just ask your doctor. He will disabuse you of that notion in short order. "Correct it, at once!" he will say. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills. A mild liver pill, all vegetable.

Collins and Adams—Publishers.

One day John Wanemaker, who died one of the richest men in the United States, but who was then just beginning his larger business transactions, called the head of his store to him, and said:

"Mr. Sommers, the silk department advertising had better be doubled next week."

"But, Mr. Wanemaker," protested the man, "the silk department is already running behind two hundred dollars a day."

"Just so," answered the great merchant prince, "that is exactly the reason that I directed you to double the advertising."

And therein lies a moral.

A gentleman of extensive business experience gave as his opinion a few days ago that Kirkland's immediate future depends on two things: First, Transportation; and, second, The Kirkland Development Company. If the County Commissioners act favorably in regard to doubling the crew and changing the ferry the Development Company can soon show that they have been harshly and unfairly criticised. They can join hand in hand with an efficient boat service and show that at heart their interest in the East Side is seated more deeply than is generally supposed. Instead of retarding growth as they have been accused of doing in the past, they can become a factor in the growth and progress of this side of the lake.

Last year the postal receipts on newspapers, magazines and periodicals of all kinds fell behind $27,000,000. A movement has been on foot to raise the postage rates on such publications but from all quarters comes the cry to overcome the deficit in some other way.

It is a fact beyond dispute that the newspapers of this or any other country do more to enlighten the people as a whole than all the universities and schools combined. They contain news from all quarters of the globe and are becoming better, generally speaking, every day. But the cost of living, labor, paper, ink, etc., have been steadily increasing, while in but few instances have the cost of newspapers been raised.

It truly seems wrong for the government to lay any greater burdens upon the great educational factors of today and the protests which are coming from the people all over the land are indeed worthy of commendation.

Mrs. Kalarne, of Seattle, visited Mrs. N. P. Ward Thursday.

BORN: To Mr. and Mrs. Smith last Saturday, an eight-pound girl.

Notice: Pay your dog tax by March 1st, to Ollis Patty. Males $1.00, females $2.00.

C. L. Parrish and Fred Mills spent the day Tuesday at their ranch in Happy Valley.

Raymond Mason and family are now living on the Mason farm just east of Juanita.

Claude Elwood and Ralph Sample are quarantined at the Tompkins home with chickenpox.

E. Von Carnap says C. L. Andrews and C. H. Younger are terribly afraid of cats. Inquire of E. A. Brooks.

Mr. A. T. Churchill, formerly of Kirkland, was in town for a short time on Wednesday of this week.

S. A. Hudson, of South Kirkland, has been carrying the mail during the absence of S. S. Shaw on jury duty in Seattle.

The lakeshore sidewalk is now finished from the south boundary of the town to a point opposite the C. L. Parrish home.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Duncan spent Wednesday at their old home on the lake, entertaining the McKinley Circle of the G. A. R.

Arthur Wittenmyer and Mrs. Horace Eagon, who have been laid up with the chickenpox for several weeks are much better.

Mrs. Clark Nettleton, who has been visiting in the East for the past few weeks, is expected home again the latter part of the week.

Ben Edgar, who has a contract for clearing a twenty-acre tract of land just south of the Four Corners, for T. W. Johnson, of Seattle, reports the work going along nicely.

Go to Mrs. C. N. Cowan's home bakery and lunch room in the Sears' Building for Bread, Doughnuts, Pies, etc.

Miss Clara Lumbeck, assistant superintendent of the Washington Children's Home Society, will occupy the pulpit at the Kirkland Congregational Church next Sunday morning and will give a short talk on the work of the society in this country.

C. W. Burdick, one of Kirkland's pioneers, is also clearing on his tract, just west of the Baughman place. Mr. Burdick has made a tremendous change in the appearance of the ranch in the past three months and if he keeps up his present gait will soon have it all in cultivation.

The Palmer-Cross Powder Company, of Juanita, has been awarded the contract of clearing the eighty-acre tract belonging to J. W. Brown, who recently held the stump blowing contest just east of Houghton. This looks like Mr. Brown had no doubt about which powder was the best.

Mr. and Mrs. John Larson were surprised last Saturday night by a number of their friends, the day being Mr. Larson's birthday. The evening was spent in dancing and card playing. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fellen, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Metcalfe, Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Kaufman and Mrs. Smith. After a most pleasant evening the guests departed at an early hour (in the morning), each wishing Mr. Larson many happy returns of the day.

A pleasing, good, high grade, truly flavored, amber colored cup of coffee can be had—and without the real coffee danger, or damage to health—by simply using Dr. Shoop's new substitute, called "Health Coffee." Pure, wholesome, toasted malt, nuts, etc., make Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee both healthful and satisfying. No 20 to 30 minutes tedious boiling. "Made in a minute," says Dr. Shoop. If served as coffee, its taste will even trick an expert. Sold by Kirkland Mercantile Co.

NEW PAPER AT SPOKANE.

The Inland Herald, the newspaper which has just been started in Spokane, sounds a true note when it says the value of a newspaper is the service it renders to the people. From the editorial page one gathers the idea that the Herald is going to be one of the leaders in newspaperdom in the northwest along those lines.

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT STOPS PLACING OF LOOSE COINS IN RURAL DELIVERY BOXES.

In view of the growth of the practice of placing loose coins in the rural delivery boxes and the trouble that the carriers have in affixing stamps in cold weather, the Postoffice Department has issued an order that after February 15 next, the rural letter carriers will not be required to collect these coins. If, however, they are placed in an envelope or a coin holding receptacle, they will be accepted by the rural route men as at present.

Mrs. "Dick" Richardson was responsible for a very enjoyable event February 5 in the way of a birthday party for N. C. Carver, which took the form of an "apron shower." A little poetic effort expressed the sentiment of those present, as follows:

"Aprons, many, or aprons, few,
May be showered this day on you.
May you live to wear them out,
Is the wish of all, no doubt.
Some are white and some are blue,
Maybe some of every hue,
And each one says, in its own way,
Many happy returns of the day."

The Nokomis Club met at the home of Mrs. W. B. Williams, February 4. Twenty-six people were present. This popular little club is steadily growing. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ernest Adams, February 18—the Post Tennyson, continued.

A few weeks ago there appeared in the Seattle Times a notice of a Tacoma man who had been cured of stomach disorders by eating hay, bran and shorts. C. Norman, who has been a sufferer for years, decided to try the diet, and up to the present time he has eaten three bales of hay and two sacks of feed and now feels as skittish as a young colt. He highly recommends the diet to all with stomach trouble. The Tacoma man ate the "feed" dry, but Mr. Norman says it is far more palatable if eaten with molasses.

BOTHELL BULLETINS.

Bothell is still on the map.

Have you seen William Shepherd's span of horses?

Report says that Dairyman E. J. Ross is to ship milk to Seattle on an automobile.

Two donkey engines are busily engaged at pulling and piling stumps in the village.

The State aid road from Everett to Seattle via Bothell is to be built from Silver Lake to this village this summer.

The stork has been very busy in this vicinity this winter; perhaps after the census is taken he will let up. Ah! but he's a cute bird.

Our real estate men are looking for a more prosperous season than that of 1909. Already several newcomers have made purchases and are preparing for crops.

Charles Walters thought that he could find greener pasture at Renton, so he fled himself to the foot of the lake, but he is back and well satisfied with Bothell's pasture.

W. A. Hannan has decided to re-enter the general merchandise business in his brick block. Mr. Hannan is well liked and he will be apt to knock the corners off the business of the other firms.

To furnish special music each Sunday evening will be the aim of the music committee of the First Congregational Church for the next few weeks.

It looks now as if the required amount of capital and labor would be forthcoming to build the proposed sidewalk from Bellevue to Wilburton, a much-needed improvement.

E. P. Moran, of Bellevue, has been appointed by Governor Hay as one of the delegates-at-large from King County to the State Good Roads Convention at Aberdeen on the 23rd and 24th of this month.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational Church will meet with Mrs. A. B. Strong on Wednesday afternoon, February 16, when Mrs. Kantner, of the Fremont Congregational Church, will give an address on the work of the Home Missionary Society, to which all Bellevue ladies are cordially invited.

The Juanita Grange reports progress with the addition of two new members at its last meeting. Every farmer in the community should join this society as it was for their special benefit that the organization was formed.

The M. W. A. of Juanita gave a smoker to a few invited guests at the last meeting. A good time was enjoyed by all present. The camp is preparing to initiate some of our young men into the mysteries of woodcraft in the near future.

A second Viking ship, in the shape of a scow of lumber propelled by ten sturdy Finlanders keeping time to the music of a clarinet, left Juanita dock at 5 p. m. Sunday and sailed majestically across to the west side of the bay. A report is current that the Finns are going to build a pavilion and grandstand on the west side this summer.
