ALL SIGNS POINT TOWARD PROSPERITY

Tremendous Business in Sight Which Should Not Be Checked.

From the Gary, Ind., Tribune, Sept. 11, 1912:

Orders on the books of the United States Steel corporation as of August 31 called for 6,163,375 tons of material. This figure represents an increase of 206,296 tons over the amount booked a month earlier. It is also the largest amount of business shown since the corporation began issuing monthly reports of its orders, and has not been exceeded in the quarterly statements since September 30, 1907. The largest amount of business the corporation ever reported was 8,489,719 tons on December 31, 1906. Since the beginning of this year the business on the order books has increased from 5,084,761 tons and during a large part of the period the mills have been running close to their productive capacity.

This means everything to Gary for the next year. If the steel companies cannot keep pace with their orders, with all the plants running at practically full capacity, the time is at hand when extensions will be in order, and Gary is going to get its share of the extensions.

Elsewhere in this issue, the Tribune prints a remarkably "boonish" series of interviews with New York bankers. They are worth reading.

It all goes to show that general business is going to be tremendous for at least a year to come, and Gary is in position to get its full share of the good things bounteous times are to give out.

IOLA IRON WORKS RUSHED

HOPE TO INCREASE FORCE FROM 100 TO 400 MEN.

Treasurer Hornsby Says the Resumption of Business Came Within Three Months.

From the Iola, Kan., Register, Sept. 13, 1912:

"Business at all our plants is rushing and in a short time we hope to be operating at full capacity at our Iola mill, which will call for some 140 men," was the interesting statement made by Mr. R. A. Hornsby of Springfield, Mo., treasurer of the United Iron Works company. Mr. Hornsby was on a visit to the Iola plant of the company and stated that he was adding to the force here as rapidly as possible, having now 100 men on the pay roll.

HAPPY FARMERS

They Have Every Cause for Joy on the Next Thanksgiving Day.

From the Detroit Free Press, Sept. 12, 1912:

A marvelously fortunate year is this of 1912 for this land of ours. The government crop report yesterday renews once more the proof that all things are uniting for the welfare of Americans. It is an amazing showing, 300,000,000 bushels of spring wheat being reported as in sight, where last year the yield was only 190,000,000 bushels, and the year before 200,000,000. Added to the winter wheat, which in spite of the soft wheat losses in our own section of the country, will still pass the 1911 mark, the total yield of this grain will run well above 700,000,000 bushels, and if private advices are reliable, even above 800,000,000 bushels.

We have had but two years in the past when the 700,000,000 mark was passed, 1906 and 1901, and the outlook is that the return per bushel for the harvest now available will exceed that of either of these.

Nor is wheat the only crop that is practically assured of reaching record figures. Corn, potatoes, barley, rice and some others are already in the class of bumper yields. The indications amount to assurance that they will all exceed any previous aggregate.

While the American fields are teeming with their produce across the ocean is heard the cry of distress. Cold weather and prolonged rainfall have played havoc there. The land is sodden and unfruitful. What crops have grown are drowning in flood. The American farmer, with his barns bulging with the yield of his acres will get big prices for his big stock of food supplies.

A bountiful harvest and a strong demand should make the farmer of this country a happy man on Thanksgiving day.

BRIGHTENING WEEKS.

From the New York Commercial, Sept. 11, 1912:

"Each week is more auspicious than its predecessor in the auspicious promise of a great business year. This is especially true in the case of trade, which is showing signs of a revival. With immense uniform crops as a foundation, accompanied by conditions in the Old World much less favorable, it gives this country a place of vantage which it has rarely if ever experienced, so concurrently do the general facts at home and abroad run in our favor.

A significant fact is that New York for the last week has been put to its trumps to accommodate adequately the immense throngs of business visitors. No city is better supplied with such resources of hospitality, but they have been strained to the uttermost since the middle of August. There is nothing in the capacity of our transportation lines which does not fully conjoin with the sanguine outlook that prevades the whole country.

While all the activities of trade are notable now they will be vastly more so in a few weeks.

Should Not Imperil Prosperity.

From the Buffalo, N. Y., News:

The current number of Dun's Review remarks upon the steady advance in trade activity, according to reports from various business centers in all parts of the country. The advance, it says, is both in actual volume of business and in that confidence which is the basis of health in business.

It is well to remember these things when one is considering the outlook. The situation together with the magnificent crops of the year explain why business men are less and less inclined to imperil prosperity by overturning the government.

Era of Greatest Prosperity.

From the New York Telegraph:

It is pleasant to note that the opinions of leading business men and watchers of the country's financial pulse are that an era of the greatest prosperity is on its way.

ALL PARTIES INTERESTED REQUESTED TO MEET IN CAMPBELL HALL, SATURDAY EVENING, OCT. 12th.

In order to perpetuate and make successful the work so magnificently commenced by a few of Kirkland's progressive citizens, all persons interested in Agriculture and Poultry are requested to meet in Campbell Hall on the evening of Oct. 12th, for the purpose of forming an association. Mr. Randall, the poultry expert will be present. It is the intention of the promoters to have any man or woman East of the lake, interested to become active members.

Date Sat. Oct. 12th, 1912.

Electric lights

The Electric Light people held a mass meeting with citizen of Kirkland in Campbell Hall on Monday evening. It was decided that a personal canvass of the town should be made in order to learn the probable number of users. The company estimates that it will cost about $500 per month for operating expenses and is exceedingly anxious to have subscribed that amount before going to additional expense. Mrs. A. J. Snyder has undertaken the task of determining the probable number of users.

AGRICULTURAL FAIR AND POULTRY SHOW GRAND SUCCESS

The First Agricultural Fair and Poultry Show for Eastern Lake Washington opened on the morning of Oct. 3rd, with a splendid display of agricultural products and poultry. Never before in the history of the East Side, has such a note worthy and representative exhibit been presented to the public. The apple display, pronounced by Mr. McGovern, a fruit exhibit as being the best ever shown in King County, was perhaps the most notable feature.

M. J. Newhouse, C. E. Newberry and Clay W. Holden who were the leading spirits in the success of the fair will never fully realize the significance of their work in thus perfecting an event which brought together the different parts of the County in the laudable enterprise of exhibiting their valuable produce and commingling as neighbors. The undertaking demanded a great amount of energy, determination, and no little degree of courage. However, these men proved equal to the occasion and have gained for themselves the lasting gratitude of the community. The N. W. S. V. feels that it is voting the endorsement of every citizen who visited the fair when it expressed his appreciation of the work done by Mr. McGovern, Mr. Randall, and Mr. Wilcox. The Kirkland Military Band and by the individual exhibitors who gave so freely of their time and energy to make the fair a success.

The agricultural exhibit was displayed on the second floor of the new school building with pleasing and telling effect. Apples, peaches and grapes occupying 150 plates arranged on tables surrounded by 566 pots of beautiful flowers was the first to greet the visitor. Against the wall could be seen corn 12 ft. 6 in. tall, Sun flowers 14 ft. in height, asparagus fern and alfalfa 8 ft. from root to top.

One of the first things to attract attention was the egg exhibited by S. E. Courtright weighing 7 1/2 oz. The egg was perfect in form containing within its outer walls a second egg with shell also perfect in form. The seedling apples exhibited by Charles Younger were somewhat of a wonder. They were of good size and shape and taken from a tree within nine miles of Mt. Baker where snow may be found from Nov. to April each year. Mrs. Marie Larsen gained a prominent place in the eyes of the public by her exhibition of a single strawberry plant containing blossoms, green and ripe strawberries. Prizes were awarded as follows by McGovern:

APPLE DISPLAY DECLARED BEST EVER SHOWN IN KING COUNTY.
FLORAL, POULTRY AND VEGETABLE JUDGES, MR. WILCOX OF HOUGHTON, MR. MCGOVERN AND RANDALL OF THE FIRM OF CHARLES E. LILY & CO. OF SEATTLE.

The first annual Agricultural Exhibit and Poultry Show is a matter of history. Rightly should be called the second as a start was made a year ago. So humble, however, was that beginning that no injustice is done in calling this the first.

The undertaking was a success. The fruit display, the small, was one of the best ever seen west of the mountains. Vegetables and Poultry also made a most excellent showing. Credit must be given to committees, visitors and those that brought exhibits. First class displays and the proper spirit are the main causes for success. The manager, however wishes to thank especially Mr. Holden and Mr. Newberry for their earnest and hard work during days of preparation and getting ready. Such spirit we must give the most hearty commendation. There are too few such men in any community. The other committees did splendid work. With such spirit any undertaking would be successful.

We are going to have a still better one next year was the general comment. This goes, without saying.

Yet we must begin soon. The display is only a minor part. Growing is the first thing. In this work this department wishes to be of help and gladly will we come to your community and give lectures on soils and means of growing. Such steps must be taken during the coming winter. Help us out by making arrangements for such meetings.

Then the fair must be conducted more scientifically. Forming an association has been suggested. This is an excellent plan and should be carried out. We are now ready to take such a step and when the call for a meeting comes be ready to support it.

SOWING VETCH AND RYE OR OATS

Most of our upland soils are sandy and shallow. Neither condition is very great water holding capacity. Sand lets water run right thru and if there is no depth the moisture that falls in the form of rain soon finds its way into the lake. Such soil needs vegetable matter. This is found in decaying leaves of plants, in manure or in a crop plowed under. Sow vetch and rye or vetch and oats now and by next spring about the time you are thinking about planting a garden you have a good lot to plow under. Perhaps about that time a little green feed for the cow is not out of place and the top might be fed plowing under the stubble and roots. Be careful and do not get the "hairy" vetch as it is a weed and Ingleton Experiment Station recommends hard to get rid of the Western Washington about six pecks of each to the acre. This by the way is excellent way to begin winning that blue ribbon at the show next year.

THE PEAR AND CHERRY SLUG,

One of the most pernicious insect pests in this district is the tadpole like slug that is now so commonly found on our pear and cherry leaves. While the leaves are nearly thru with their work for the year yet we must not let the insect go unchecked as it will appear in great numbers next year and perhaps long before the leaves are ready to fall. In many sections the slug is doing much damage by robbing the tree of its vigor even if it does not kill it outright.

The slug comes from an egg laid upon the leaf by a small black fly. Upon hatching the slug is white but soon turns to an olive dark color. It attacks the leaves and often only the veins remain.

It is not a difficult matter to combat this pest. Dust will destroy them or a spray made up of two pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water properly applied is all that is needed. The whole proceeding means a little work but well worth while especially if you value a cherry or pear crop next year.

REDMOND

Entertainment consisting of instrumental and vocal music, also reading will be given in Perrigo's Hall Friday evening Oct. 18. After the program evening will be spent in games. Candy and Pop Corn will be on sale.

SCHOOL NOTES.

At the meeting of the Teachers of the Redmond school several plans for raising money to remodel the old school building into a Gymnasium were discussed. This old building would be a fine Gymnasium and would be a much needed improvement. About $400 will be needed in remodeling and equipping the building.

The Literary Society of the High school Redmond will probably present a play the first of December, they have been considering "She Stoops to Conquer" but owing to the lack of boys and the number of male parts in the play it may not be possible "Between the Acts" is another good comedy which may be given.

The Redmond school in order to make the attendance as good as possible and to cut down tardiness are offering a half holiday to each room that secures fifty stars. A star is granted for each half day when the room has no one absent or tardy. The rooms are very much interested in this and are working to secure their half holidays.

Gift That Blaine Had.

James G. Blaine had the rare gift of dismissing from his presence any one who had come to him for a favor which he could not grant, with a feeling that he was his big brother, and grieved to death at the compulsion of refusal. Although Blaine was universally beloved, yet he was defeated for the highest office in the gift of the people.—From the Magazine of American History.

Once Exclusive Pet of Royalty.

The Pekingese spaniel, or "lion dog," now so popular among dog lovers, was formerly an exclusive possession of China's rulers, and it was a capital offense to remove one of the diminutive creatures from the imperial palace. A pair of them were brought to Europe after the capture of Peking in 1860, and from these and a few others the American specimens of the breed are descended.

SERIAL STORY

STANTON WINS

By Eleanor M. Ingram
Author of "The Game and the Candle," "The Flying Mercury," etc.
Illustrations by Frederic Thorburgh

SYNOPSIS.

At the beginning of great automobile race the mechanic of the Mercury, Stanton's machine, drops dead. Strange youth, Jesse Floyd, volunteers, and is accepted. In the rest during the twenty-four hour race Stanton meets a stranger, Miss Carlisle, who introduces herself. The Mercury wins race. Stanton receives flowers from Miss Carlisle, which he ignores. Stanton meets Miss Carlisle on a train. They alight to take walk, and train leaves. Stanton and Miss Carlisle follow in auto. Accident by which Stanton is hurt is mysterious. Floyd, at lunch with Stanton, tells of his boyhood. Stanton again meets Miss Carlisle and they dine together. Stanton comes to track stop, but makes race. They have accident. Floyd hurt, but not seriously. At dinner Floyd tells Stanton of his twin sister, Jessica. Stanton becomes very ill and loses consciousness. On recovery, at his hotel Stanton receives invitation and visits Jessica. They go to theater together, and meet Miss Carlisle. Stanton and Floyd meet again and talk business. They agree to operate automobile factory as partners. Floyd becomes suspicious of Miss Carlisle. Stanton again visits Jessica, and they become fast friends. Stanton becomes suspicious of Miss Carlisle. Just before important race fires needed for Stanton's car are delayed.

The assistant manager stared in a reproach touched with hysteria. His collar was wilted, his eye-glasses dangled by their cord.

"Buy them? Buy enough racing tires fitting the Mercury to last you for a three hundred mile road race, and get them here by to-morrow morning? What's the matter with you, Stanton?"

"Well, since there is nothing to do but eat, come to dinner, Floyd," said the other.

"It isn't dinner, it's supper," corrected his mechanic. "This is the country and you had your dinner a noon. But I'll come, anyhow."

At the table in the course of the meal, a small teapot was set before Stanton.

"Chocolate, sir," he was told.

"Why, you had none at lunch?"

"The pompadoured waitress brought it, Mr. sir. But the gentleman sent a boy after some and came down and saw the cook, and cook's that fond of nonsense, and she fifty-four next December—"

Stanton looked across into Floyd's mirthful gray eyes.

"I hadn't anything better to do," was the malicious explanation. "And I was afraid your nerves would go to pieces if you didn't get your usual drug and then you'd wreck us to-morrow."

"He'd coax a bird off a tree, sir," tittered the departing maid.

"Give me your cup and have some," Stanton briefly commanded.

"Going to throw it at me, like you did that jug of water on the first night we raced together?" teased his companion, obeying.

Stanton's head lifted slightly, the regard in which he enveloped Floyd was almost savage in its leap of intense and tenacious passion. Such a glance from man to woman would have been a declaration, from man to man it was not a thing to be voiced. Floyd himself faltered before it, started into pallor.

"You can throw it at me, if you like, and square up," was all Stanton said, and reached for the sugar-bowl with his customary nonchalance.

"Thanks; it's boiling, I guess I won't," Floyd acknowledged. But he did not look at the other, and his manner was troubled.

The meal was ended and the evening had commenced, when a telegram came in from New York.

"Car marked Ruby Co. consigned to Mercury Co. Coney Island, left here last night."

Mr. Green uttered a howl and felt for the telephone.

"They've shipped the car to Coney Island instead of Long Branch," he raged. "The tires must be out at the Beach track, or near it."

"Don't telephone; send some one out there to get them," advised Stanton practically.

"I've got to be here, and I can't get our New York men in time, now."

"Well, I'll go, then. Coney Island has got to be raked fine and the tires brought here as soon as they are found."

"You? You? Traveling and wearing yourself out on the eve of a grueling race? No. Go to bed and get your rest, please, Stanton. I'll send some one."

Stanton did not go to bed, but he went into the hotel room across the hall and played billiards with three of his fellow-drivers. He was less forbidding, less caustic of speech than formerly. Floyd had taught him the art of companionship. Before the game ended, the four players found themselves very good company and drank a good night in Apollinaris, to the landlord's Baediche disgust.

About ten o'clock, Stanton looked into the apartment where Mr. Green sat between the telegraph operator and the telephone.

"Where is Floyd?" he casually wondered.

"Hello, hello—no, hold the wire. What is it? Floyd? Oh, he's gone to Coney Island. Hello, yes—wrong number."

"To Coney Island! You sent him?"

"He offered to go," Mr. Green jerkily imparted. "Please go to bed, won't you? Floyd can take care of himself, I should think, and he has had a two weeks' rest to get ready for this."

"What do you mean? He has been working at the factory or with you ever since we came back from Indianapolis."

In a nervous exasperation the assistant manager whirled his chair around.

"He had a two weeks' vacation," he reiterated crossly. "He told me that he was going off by himself for a quiet rest. You don't have to know everything, Stanton. I fancy he needed a rest after what you put him through out west, he asked me not to tell you about it. Hello—454—"

Stanton paused for a moment, dumb, then turned on his heel and went out. He was so stunned and bitterly angered that little red flecks danced before his vision. Floyd had lied to him, systematically deceived him; in order to escape from his too pressing friendship, no doubt. He remembered that the mechanic had always shrunk from his personal advances and only yielded to them under compulsion.

Now he understood the letter which he had received the previous night from Green, and Mr. Bailey's confused answer to his question about Floyd. He had been put off to be amused by Jessica, until Floyd was again ready to use him in the plans for the Comet factory. Jessica! Stanton stopped short in the dark hall. Had Jessica also deceived him? Was she too playing a part in order to keep him in a good humor? He struck his clenched hand violently against the wall beside him.

"What's that?" cried the affrighted Mr. Green, within the room. "Who—?"

"I ran against the wall, in the dark," Stanton called, his voice a little hoarse, but evenly controlled. "Good night."

"Good night. We'll fix things all right, Stanton; you take a good sleep." "I shall," promised the driver.

He did not.

At seven o'clock, the next morning, Mr. Green burst into the hotel dining-room where Stanton was at breakfast.

"He's got them! They're coming," he rejoiced maniacally. "The car wasn't at Brighton, but he located it ten miles farther over, on a siding. And he raised such a disturbance around the express people's ears that they unloaded the tires then and there, and rushed out two motor trucks to get them across to us. They'll be here by eight and the race starts at nine."

Stanton looked at the night-anxious man and it looked as if you would be withdrawn from the contest for lack of a few sets of rubber tires. That foot the company! He wiped his forehead. "Don't you want to come out to the course, after you finish here? Floyd is due on the train which arrives in fifteen minutes, if he isn't smothered by the crowd. I never saw such a mob of people; they have been coming since dawn; all night, in fact, and they're still coming."

"Yes," acquiesced the other emotionally. His dark face gave an effect of bronzedlike immobility, his blue-black eyes held steel glints.

"Well," the assistant manager resumed, and paused.

The pompadoured waitress was leaning between them, placing a teapot on the table.

"Chocolate, sir," she giggled.

Stanton pushed back his chair, then checked himself as sharply.

"No," he stated, and set the pot away from before him.

The movement was not violent, but there was in it so much poorly restrained force that the china vessel shattered upon striking the table and all the fragrant brown liquid ran over the white cloth. The girl exclaimed in dismay, Mr. Green stared; Stanton only dropped a dollar-bill beside his plate and rose to go.

"I am ready," he signified.

The Mercury camp was a scene of animated preparation, twenty minutes later, when Floyd emerged from the dense press of arriving spectators and gained the inclosure. The assistant manager almost received him in his arms, the rest of the force clustered around. Gay, blithe, triumphant, here, if it wasn't for you," he declared, once.

"I'm awfully bright," Floyd agreed, but he did not smile.

The machines were preparing to go to their stations for the start, Stanton was in his seat at the wheel, when Floyd came over, and leaning against the car, looked up into the driver's face.

"What have I done?" he asked simply.

Both men were still unmasked, their privacy of speech was secured by the uproar around them. Stanton looked grimly back.

"Lied to me. You were not kept away from New York by work with Green, or any other work, for the last two weeks."

A tinge of scarlet streaked Floyd's pallor, he bent his head.

"Yes, I lied to you," he admitted.

Stanton's gauntleted hand closed on his wheel.

"There was no need. Your time was your own, Floyd; I claimed no control over you. I don't know why you did it, to be rid of me for a while, I suppose, but the reason doesn't matter. Last night I thought a good many wild things about you, and your sister, but this morning I've got my grip again. No doubt you had all you could stand of me, I'm not precisely lovable and I would have understood if you had just told me so. But I will have no friend I can't trust all the way. Get in—we will finish this race, and part."

Floyd raised his head and gave to the stern scrutiny his candid gray eyes.

"Stanton, trust me all the way now," he appealed. "Can you do that? Can you take my word that your friendship is the only thing in the world I want? If I deceived you, it was so I could be here to race with you to-day. I will tell you afterward, I can't now."

"You mean—"

Floyd held out his hand.

"I've got everything badly mixed up but it's clean to offer you, Stanton."

As swiftly impulsive as his condemnation was Stanton's movement as he bent to give the clasp.

"All right," he said curtly. "Get in; I ought to have given you a chance." And as the other obeyed: "I didn't mean to meet you as I did, an hour ago, anyhow; it slipped me."

"They're signaling," warned Mr. Green, hurrying over. "Are you ready? Both of you?"

From his place beside Stanton, Floyd turned a face of incarnate sunshine to the assistant manager, a face so changed in its color and glow and warmth that all who saw drew breath in sheer wonder.

"We're ready," his lifting tones assured. "Don't worry."

Stanton laughed with him, fastening on the mask, and sent the Mercury rolling forward. The world was right once more, and life sane.

It was an exquisite morning; windless, cool, with happy little effects of snowy cloud against a cobalt-blue sky. The October air was a summer-distilled cordial, an ethereal intoxicant. The racers had no time to notice it, yet the effect was there. The speed made on the first laps was record-breaking.

The brown or gray streak of road ahead, the deadly arms, the treacherous smooth hills upon which it was so easy to meet disaster—for the first hour Stanton had no attention to spare from these. Moreover, the spectators were massed over the course in many places, receding just enough to leave a lane for each car's passage, and so imposing another anxiety upon the drivers who knew the swerve of a foot must bring death to some one.

"Car behind," Floyd's clear accents gave the familiar cautions, from time to time. "He's tryin' to get us before the turn. The Atlanta's head in the dust."

The pace maintained was the fastest at which the Mercury could be held to the road. It was Stanton's way to gain the lead first, when possible, then keep a steady average regardless of his rivals' spurts of speed; unless the race were too short to permit such tactics or the contest too close. Now, at the end of the second hour Floyd made the desired announcement, as they shot past the grand-stand and the bulletin boards.

"We're leadin'. The tires have been holdin' fine—look out for them this round."

Stanton moved his head affirmatively, his narrowed eyes unwavering from the line of course ahead. Heeding the advice, he did take the turns more carefully.

Bird's Nest in Mall Box.

Probably a bird's nest in a rural mall box is a rare thing, if it has ever happened before, but out in Oswegatchie a small bird has taken possession of a mall box and has already built her nest and laid three eggs and it looks as though she would complete her work of hatching and rearing her young.

The particular box picked out by the bird is one that is in use daily and the mall carried never misses a stop at this box. Mrs. Bird seems to enjoy the idea to have the mall carrier lift the cover of the box and deposit the mall and will sit on her nest as unconcerned as can be. The mall box has been fixed so that it will not close entirely so that the bird may complete the task of rearing her young. It is not known what kind of a bird this is, but it is thought that it is a phebe, being brown of color and about the size of a sparrow and laying sky-blue eggs.—Watertown Correspondent New London Day.

Much Required of Physicians.

In Belochistan when a physician gives a dose he is expected to partake of a similar one himself as a guarantee of his good faith. Should the patient die under his hands the relatives, though they rarely exercise it, have the right of putting him to death, unless a special agreement has been made for freeing him from all responsibility as to consequences; while, if they should decide upon immolating him, he is expected to yield to his fate like a man.

SALADS FOR HOT DAYS

CONCOCTIONS THAT WILL TEMPT POOR APPETITE.

When Heavy Meat Dishes Are Out of Place These May Be Used to Advantage—Both Cooling and Nourishing.

The appetite jaded by heat may be tempted by salads only when those salads are seasonable. Heavy meat concoctions and most of the fish mixtures are not suitable for hot weather.

The ideal summer salad has three requisites—it must be light, appetizing in appearance and icy cold. French dressing is more reasonable than mayonnaise, also more digestible, and fruits and vegetables are preferable to nuts, fish or meats. It is hard to get headed lettuce in summer, but if the young, tender leaves of the garden lettuce are crisp by being put in a cloth on the ice they are improved.

Salad being both cooling and nourishing, may be eaten at both lunch and dinner. To prepare it easily have lettuce always crisp in the refrigerator and also have a pint bottle filled with a thick French dressing. This should be well shaken before using, and any left in the salad bowl may be strained and poured back.

It is economical to use left-over vegetables and fruit from dinner of the previous day. Particularly nice is one made of tomatoes cut in eighths, asparagus, shredded green peppers, thinly sliced cucumber, a cake of Neufchatel cheese and a liberal supply of Chili sauce. This is well marinated with French dressing flavored with onion, or chopped onion may be mixed through the salad. Serve on a bed of lettuce.

This salad may be mixed with string beans, peas or small lima beans. Cream cheese is good through the mixture, and if nothing else is convenient grate American cheese thickly over it.

A rather heavier salad is made from hard-boiled eggs cut lengthwise. Remove yolks and rub to a paste with anchovies. Refill and put a slice of anchovy on each section. Serve on hearts of lettuce.

Another nice mixture for a plain lettuce salad are squares of cream cheese sprinkled thickly with caviare. Place these in the center of the lettuce and surround with a border of crisp bacon broken very fine. Cover with French dressing seasoned with chutney.

Green peppers are invaluable for a summer salad. Served whole, they are delicious when mixed with a highly seasoned mayonnaise. A spoonful of the dressing should be put on top of each cup. Another good filling is cold claw and shredded peppers well mingled. A pretty salad is made by arranging a bed of tender green lettuce leaves, or young nasturtium leaves, and on it putting a center of cream cheese balls, then a row of shredded green peppers, another row of cheese balls and an outer border of shredded pimientos. The canned ones may be used. Cover with a thick French dressing. If onions are liked, small pearl onions can be sprinkled over the cheese balls.

A delicious fruit salad is a round of tender pineapple placed on a lettuce leaf. On top of the pineapple dot berries in season, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries or currants, and in the center of the berries have a round of cream cheese. Border the fruit mixture with mayonnaise and put a little in the center of the cheese.

Mustard Pickle.

Three cauliflowers, broken in small pieces; one quart small skin onions, one quart small silver skin onions, four green peppers, cut fine. Make a brine of four quarts of water and one pint of salt, soak all in this brine over night. In the morning beat through in this same brine just enough to scald and pour into a colander to drain.

Mix two-thirds of a cup of flour with six tablespoons of mustard, one cup brown sugar, one heaping teaspoon of turmeric powder, add enough cold vinegar to make two quarts in all. Boil until thick, stirring often to prevent scorching. Add the pickles and just heat through.

Burnt Sugar Cake.

Two and one-half cups flour, one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, two eggs, one-half cup butter, two teaspoonsful baking powder, two teaspoonsful flavoring. Take one cup sugar and burn in skillet, as soon as it is all melted pour in one-half cup of warm water; then stir until it looks like it was ready, and put in cake.

Filling—One and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of milk, a little butter; cook in skillet, where sugar was burned. Then bake.

Lemon Tarts.

Puff Paste. To one pint of flour add one teaspoonful of baking powder; mix in one cupful of butter or lard; wet with cold water. Roll thin and line tart cups. Fill with filling.

Filling—One cupful of sugar, juice of one lemon, one egg, piece of butter size of walnut (melted). Beat together thoroughly. Use one tablespoonful for each tart.

Tomato Salad With Cheese.

Pick and slice the tomatoes and arrange in a salad dish. Make a dressing of oil, white wine, pepper and salt and stir in some grated Parmesan. Pour this over the tomatoes, let stand on ice for 15 minutes or so before serving.

THE CHINESE HERBALIST.

The Chinese system of medicine differs from all others. It employs only purely herbal remedies and adheres to principles that have been thoroughly tested for thousands of years. When a patient comes to C. Gee Wo for treatment he is given a careful examination and he is told what ails him. Then he is given sufficient herb remedies for a course of time and told to report again to have his condition noted. In most cases patients notice a decided improvement in their health in a week's time. This is particularly so in nervous diseases and where the system is run down. The system itself when toned up to normal is often able to throw off sickness. If you are ailing don't continue to suffer when the help of harmless remedies is so near at hand.

"Don't telephone; send some one out there to get them," advised Stanton practically.

"I've got to be here, and I can't get our New York men in time, now."

"Well, I'll go, then. Coney Island has got to be raked fine and the tires brought here as soon as they are found."

"You? You? Traveling and wearing yourself out on the eve of a grueling race? No. Go to bed and get your rest, please, Stanton. I'll send some one."

Stanton did not go to bed, but he went into the hotel room across the hall and played billiards with three of his fellow-drivers. He was less forbidding, less caustic of speech than formerly. Floyd had taught him the art of companionship. Before the game ended, the four players found themselves very good company and drank a good night in Apollinaris, to the landlord's Baediche disgust.

About ten o'clock, Stanton looked into the apartment where Mr. Green effect of bronzedlike immobility, his blue-black eyes held steel glints.

"Well," the assistant manager resumed, and paused.

The pompadoured waitress was leaning between them, placing a teapot on the table.

"Chocolate, sir," she giggled.

Stanton pushed back his chair, then checked himself as sharply.

"No," he stated, and set the pot away from before him.

The movement was not violent, but there was in it so much poorly restrained force that the china vessel shattered upon striking the table and all the fragrant brown liquid ran over the white cloth. The girl exclaimed in dismay, Mr. Green stared; Stanton only dropped a dollar-bill beside his plate and rose to go.

"I am ready," he signified.

The Mercury camp was a scene of animated preparation, twenty minutes later, when Floyd emerged from the dense press of arriving spectators and gained the inclosure. The assistant manager almost received him in his arms, the rest of the force clustered around. Gay, blithe, triumphant, here, if it wasn't for you," he declared, once.

"I'm awfully bright," Floyd agreed, but he did not smile.

The machines were preparing to go to their stations for the start, Stanton was in his seat at the wheel, when Floyd came over, and leaning against the car, looked up into the driver's face.

"What have I done?" he asked simply.

Both men were still unmasked, their privacy of speech was secured by the uproar around them. Stanton looked grimly back.

"Lied to me. You were not kept away from New York by work with Green, or any other work, for the last two weeks."

TURKS EAGER FOR STRUGGLE

Moslems Curse Slavs, Declaring They Are Not Afraid.

Legations Are Attacked and Windows Broken—Troops Called Out—Contempt for Bulgarians.

Constantinople—Sentiment in favor of war is increasing in Turkey. Several thousand persons held mass meeting in the mosque of Sultan Ahmed I, at Stamboul, at which all references to the Balkan states were greeted with cries of "cursed be Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro."

Several leaders of the Liberal party addressed the meeting, declaring that Turkey was ready to face all her foes.

Hilma Pasha and Munhir Pasha have been appointed cabinet ministers without portfolios. This step was taken in view of the gravity of the situation.

There were continued reports of skirmishes on the frontiers, but no definite news concerning them was received.

The Servian minister will depart from Constantinople immediately, leaving the legation in the hands of a charge d'affaires.

Hostile demonstrations against the Italian embassy and the Bulgarian and other Balkan legations were renewed by the populace. They were more violent in form than those of the preceding day. Many windows were broken by showers of bricks and stones and the troops were called to assist in dispersing the rioters.

Contempt for the military qualities of the Balkan people is prominently shown in the words and men of Turkish soldiers from the highest to the lowest.

The feeling is obvious also among Turkish civilians of high position, and if confidence in victory can win for the Moslems in the event of war with the Christians, the triumph of Turkish arms is assured.

OUTLAWS ROB EXPRESS.

Dynamite Safes and Ransack Express and Mail Cars.

Westville, Okla.—Four masked men held up Kansas City Southern passenger train No. 4, northbound, three and a half miles north of Poteau, ransacked the mails, blew open the safe in the express car and retreated into the wood-covered hills that skirt the railroad at that point.

The men boarded the train as it stopped at a crossing a short distance from Poteau. Crawling over the tender, two of them covered the engineer and fireman with revolvers, while the others robbed the mail and express cars.

After wrecking the express car safe with nitro-glycerine the robbers entered the mail car and demanded all the "through" mail. Refusing to accept the clerks' word that there was none, they ransacked the pouches, getting not more than a dozen letters, that are believed to have contained little of value.

The loot from the express car is estimated at $10,000. The bank at Heavener, Okla., is said to have had $7000 on the train. The loot was carried away in a gunny sack.

Turks and Italians Make Peace
London—Peace between Italy and Turkey was signed at Ouchy, Switzerland, according to a news agency dispatch received here from Paris.

Constantinople—That the Turkish cabinet voted to accept Italy's latest proposal for peace is the announcement made from an authoritative source. The preliminary agreements were to be signed upon the arrival at Ouchy of a special Turkish emissary, who left Constantinople immediately after the cabinet meeting.

Europeans Are Menaced.

Amoy, China.—Threats to sacrifice European lives at Foo-Chow have been uttered by General Pung, unless his demands of 450,000 taels (about $315,000) from the authorities are acceded to. The mutinous troops with General Pung number from 10,000 to 20,000 men. A force of 5000 government troops is marching from Nanking to meet the rebels. The missionaries have been recalled from the Hingwa district to the north of this city, where serious disorder has existed for some time.

Miners To Return to Work.

Butte, Mont.—President Donaghue, of the Montana Federation of Labor, who has just returned from Great Falls, said the miners affiliated with the United Mineworkers of America who laid down their tools in all Montana coal mines last Monday, pending the adoption of a new wage agreement, would accept the proposed scale and that work would be resumed next week. Mr. Donaghue said there was little opposition to the proposed scale.

Russians Cheer Bulgarians.

St. Petersburg—The departure from St. Petersburg for the front of the Bulgarian officers of the reserves was the occasion of a great Slav demonstration at the Varsay depot. M. Bashnakoff, editor of the Official Messenger, who had been deputed by the Slavonic society, addressed an informal meeting in the imperial waiting room, assuring his brother Slavs that Russia would support them for weal or woe.

STANDARD OIL NOT HURT.

Pursues Same Business Methods As Before "Dissolution."

Chicago—The Standard Oil company of Indiana still buys its crude oil from the Prairie Oil & Gas company and the Ohio Oil company, and ships its refined product in cars of the Union Tank line, both former subsidiary corporations of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, the same as before the separation of the corporations by order of the United States Supreme court. Such was evidence brought out at the hearing here in the fight waged by H. Clay Pierce against stockholders of the Standard Oil company for control of the Waters-Pierce Oil company.

The hearing will be resumed at New York. John D. Archbold, vice president of the corporation, will be called as a witness before the conclusion of the hearing in New York.

It was brought out by witnesses that the company since its separation from the parent corporation has not established any new stations in territory outside the states previously covered by the Indiana concern.

President Cowan, of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, denied, however, that John D. Archbold or other directors of the old corporation have had any connection with the management of the Indiana corporation since the order of dissolution.

President Cowan explained that the $29,000,000 stock dividend distributed after the reorganization of the company represented property owned by the corporation, and was made after the capital stock had been increased from $1,000,000 to $30,000,000.

L. J. Drake, vice-president of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, said he was in charge of the marketing of the company's product, and that there was no agreement or understanding in regard to the prices or territory with any of the former subsidiary corporations of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

AUTOIST HURLED TO DEATH AT 90 MILES AN HOUR

Milwaukee—David Bruce-Brown, a wealthy young New York sportsman, was killed and his mechanic, Tony Scudalari, was fatally injured on the new Wauwatosa automobile road course on the eve of the eighth running of the Vanderbilt cup race.

Bruce-Brown was driving his high-powered Fiat car at a 90-mile an hour speed when a rear left tire blew out. The heavy car swerved into a ditch and a second later men and machine were catapulted diagonally across the road and into a field with great force. The men were thrown clear of the car, which was hurled high in the air and then smashed into a heap of wreckage.

Brown's skull was fractured, his left leg broken and he suffered internal injuries. Surgeons said that death resulted directly from hemorrhage of the brain. The top of Scudalari's skull was crushed, his right arm broken and his body seriously torn.

PAROLED MAN IS BLAMED.

Adams, Not Webber, Originator of Counterfeiting Plan, Is Belief.

Seattle—Secret service operatives, taking note of the effort of George E. Adams, the paroled assay office looter, to represent himself as the dupe of 70-year-old John C. Webber in the plot to manufacture counterfeit silver dollars in a mint established by them near Kent, said that all the evidence they had gathered showed Adams as the principal.

Adams, they said, supplied the old man with money, obliged him to account for every penny and gave him instructions about his conduct. The secret service men say that Adams and Webber apparently decided upon the counterfeiting scheme while they were both in prison, and Adams set Webber to work as soon as the old man was out of prison at the end of his term.

Webber makes no denial of his part in the plot and will plead guilty.

Italian Navy Will Help.

Rome—Italy's program in the event of war in the Balkans has not been mapped out. It is known, however, that the Italian navy will play a prominent role, indirectly aiding the Balkan coalition by preventing Turkey from moving troops out of Asia Minor. To this end the Italian fleet will keep its full strength in the vicinity of the Aegean sea. To move troops from Asia Minor toward Macedonia by land, it is said, probably would be beyond the resources available to the Turkish government.

Professor Lowe Dying.

Pasadena, Cal.—Prof. Thaddeus S. C. Lowe, designer and builder of the Mount Lowe railway, inventor of water gas and pioneer aeronaut, is near death here at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. L. Wright. Professor Lowe won fame as a balloonist during the Civil war, being the first aeronaut attached to the United States army. Mount Lowe is named after him. Professor Lowe is 80 years old, and is in a precarious condition.

Grand Jury Ignores Vice.

Chicago—Despite testimony by Miss Virginia Brooks, the West Hammond "Joan of Arc," the Cook county grand jury adjourned without voting indictments as the result of its vice investigations. It also refused to take cognizance of the report that a member of the staff of the state's attorney had attempted to prevent the vice investigation.
